All-Out Red Attack on Yanks Likely Today; Malik Demands U. N. Order U. S. From Korea

Probers Hint Wiretapping ReportPoints At Brewster

Democrats Reported Having Secret Data; Jury Hears Shimon's Former Associates

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

Top Senate Democrats who engineered the forthcoming wire-tapping probe are gunning for political bear—with a Republican tag.

That became clear last night when it was learned that members of the Senate Democratic Policy Committee were fully informed, before they acted, of the contents of the much-discussed and still secret Shimon report.

In fact, it appears the delivery of the report by Police Supt. Robert J. Barrett to the Senate District subcommittee behind closed doors next Tuesday will be rather anti-climactic.

Subject to Secret Report

Police Lieut. Joseph W. Shimon, former chief investigator in United States Attorney George Morris Fay's office, was the subject of the secret report. Officially, only the Justice Department and police officials know its contents. Just how the Snators got the report was not known last night.

One thing that is clear is that the Democratic Senators have very little, if any, interest in Shimon himself.

The man they are interested in is Senator Brewster, the Maine Republican who heads the Senate's GOP campaign committee. One top Democrat put it this way:

"I think we are going to hear some very interesting things when Shimon and the others are put on the stand and testify under oath."

Explanation Called "Thin"

Another Democrat called "pretty thin" the explanation by Senator Brewster of his encounter with Shimon. This was that someone was following him during the 1947 Howard Hughes investigation and when a fellow Senator complained officially, Shimon came to his office to talk to him about it.

Brewster was a witness on Thursday before the District grand jury which is looking into the wire-tapping business. He said he testified in place of his vacationing secretary who had been called "in relation to a very minor office matter."

One report published yesterday was that Shimon received a payment for expenses from a Senator's secretary, presumably Brewster's. Both were in Maine last night.

But a Democrat said: "That's not in the Shimon report." He also indicated he knew what was.

Reached at his home in Dexter, Me., by telephone last night, Brewster told The Washington Post he paid Shimon from $100 to $125 for his expenses in investigating a man who shadowed the Senator for several weeks during the Hughes investigation.

He denied emphatically that the payment had anything to do with wiretapping.

"I told several Senators this man was following me," Brewster said. "He would wait outside my office and follow me to my hotel. One of the Senators said some-

Absentee Votes Fail for Truman Candidate in Mo.

St. Louis, Aug. 4 (AP).—Thomas C. Hennings, jr., of St. Louis defeated President Truman's man for the Missouri Democratic Senatorial nomination, a check of absentee ballots showed tonight.

State Senator Emery W. Allison of Rolla, the President's choice, picked up almost a thousand votes in the absentee ballot count. But with the counting almost complete, Hennings still had a lead of around 4000 votes.

In the November general election he will meet the man Mr. Truman wanted to beat with Allison—Republican Senator Forrest C. Donnell, seeking a second term.

O'Mahoney Again Urges Profits Tax

Finance Group Cool, But Floor Fight In Senate Expected

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) yesterday carried his call for an immediate excess profits tax to a predominantly cool Senate Finance Committee as a floor fight appeared shaping up on the issue.

Later, Senator Tom Connally (D., Tex.) told newsmen he will move an excess profits tax amendment to the bill in committee and fight for it also on the floor.

The outlook for the profits levy appeared dim in committee, but spot checks of floor sentiment indicated opponents of the levy will have difficulty keeping it out of the bill.

Finance Chairman Walter F. George (D., Ga.) repeated to reporters that "this is no time to put it on."

'If We Are Here Then'

"I would think we would consider it in November, if we are here then, or in January," said George.

The Finance Committee interrupted a search for loop-hole plugging revenues to help reach the President's five-billion-dollar emergency tax goal to hear O'Mahoney.

"While we are drafting young men for the purposes of the war we must not fail to draft these extraordinary profits of the corporate economy," the Wyoming Democrat argued.

O'Mahoney pointed to enlarged photographs from Tuesday's Washington Post, showing Washington's organized Marine Reserve taking their farewell of the Capital.

O'Mahoney said he didn't see how Senators could look at this picture "without making up their minds to send profit dollars to war too."

'Standby' Favored

Permissive Curbs Gain Hill Support

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

The Senate Banking Committee yesterday rejected the idea of imposing "automatic" price and wage controls, and voted "in principle" to give the President standby or permissive authority instead.

The House, meanwhile, after much huffing and puffing and many false starts, appeared to be moving in the same direction.

The action of the Senate committee was made known by Senator Sparkman (D., Ala.). He said the committee voted 10 to 3 against a proposal by Senator Fulbright (D., Ark.) which would have forced the President to invoke wage and price controls when the cost of living increased 6 percent above last June levels.

Although Fulbright had steadily whittled down the rigidities in his proposal to give the President more discretion, the majority of the committee decided that it was not wise to substitute mechanical devices for administrative judgment in a fluid situation.

Accordingly, the committee apparently buried the idea for keeps. It voted for the premissive authority almost unanimously. Thereupon, it gave its staff the weekend job of drafting legislation on stand-by powers of almost exactly the sort the President has said would be acceptable.

This means the bill in preparation will let the President fix price ceilings when he wants to, as high or as low as he wants to, on whatever individual items he wants, or over the whole field.

The committee decided to let him administer the program through existing agencies, except that if he orders across-the-board controls, a new, all-powerful agency would be set up.

Finally, the committee agreed that he should not invoke any wage controls without imposing at the same time corresponding price ceilings. He may set prices without fixing wages, however.

The committee will reconvene

D. C. Unit Called

Army Orders 62,000 More Reservists

By V. R. Montanari
Post Reporter

The Army yesterday ordered the calling up of 62,000 individual enlisted reservists during September and October.

They will be taken from a pool of about 185,000 male enlisted reserves who are not members of organized reserve units.

The men will be called "with or without their consent," for 21 months of active duty. They will be the first unorganized Army reservists to be ordered up.

Meanwhile, the 430th Engineer Construction Battalion, a District unit of Army organized reservists, was called to report for active duty August 19.

This is the first District Army organized reserve unit to be called.

The individual reservists to be activated by the Army will be used primarily to bring to full strength

U. S. Spending Bill Approved By Senate

$34,236,932,228 Voted In Single Package; Move To Cut ECA Fund Loses

By The Associated Press

The Senate late yesterday approved a "single package" $34,236,932,228 appropriation bill giving the President most of the pre-Korea military and foreign aid funds he asked. Non-defense spending was cut, however.

As finally passed after weeks of debate, the bill retains unchanged the Bridges-Byrd cut in all but a few civilian agencies.

If accepted by a House-Senate conference committee, the 10 percent horizontal cut in funds finally approved by Congress mainly will hit non-defense administrative expenses for travel, salaries, supplies, etc.

Separate Program Set

The so-called "B-B" slash, estimated at 525 million dollars, could squeeze out of non-defense agencies between 25,000 and 40,000 workers if the conferees let it stand.

The House Appropriations Committee, however, has embarked on a separate program of non-defense "recisions" and may battle the horizontal cut principle.

For the second straight day, Marshall Plan funds, exempted Thursday from the "B-B" cut, escaped further pruning.

The attempt, by Senator McClellan (D., Ark.), to whack 5 percent off the $2,726,761,473 Marshall Plan for economic aid for western Europe was defeated, 41 to 38.

As finally approved, the bill carries $14,680,000,000 in cash and spending authority for the armed services. This does not include about $16,500,000,000 recently requested by President Tru-

Soviet Hurls Threat to Use Veto Power In Council Vote

Lake Success, Aug. 4 (AP). With a threat to use the veto, the Soviet Union today demanded that the United Nations order American troops out of Korea and seat the North Koreans in Security Council deliberations.

Warren R. Austin, chief United States delegate, accused Russia's Jacob A. Malik of conducting a shell game, full of "hypocrisy," in his conduct as Council president. Austin asserted Malik is playing the Council "around and around the squirrel cage," and said the demand for withdrawal of troops is against all reason.

Malik introduced the Soviet Union's Korean peace plan at the start of today's Security Council session. Austin attacked it as a deviation from the business at hand. He and Britain's Sir Gladwyn Jebb said only the Republic of Korea—the South Koreans—belongs at the Council table.

They made it clear the Russian proposals would be rejected by a majority when the Council resumes sessions next Tuesday.

Austin sounded his "hyprocrisy" charge outside the Council, telling reporters after the session there is a way—he did not name it—to end Malik's tactics. The former Vermont Senator added he did not see how the Council could continue with "obstructionist, cunning tactics—the kind of under-this-shell now, under-that-shell then, game that is being played."

U. S. Resolution on Table

The pending business at the start of today's meeting was an American resolution for the Council to condemn the North Koreans in defying a cease-fire, and to call on all nations to boycott them.

Malik's resolution would counter the United States proposal. The Malik plan read:

"The Security Council decides,

"(A) To consider it necessary, in the course of the discussion of the Korean question, to invite the representative of the People's Republic of China and also to hear representatives of the Korean people;

"(B) To put an end to the hostilities in Korea and at the same time to withdraw foreign troops from Korea."

Backing this resolution, Malik said the Soviet Union regards the question of inviting representatives of the Korean people as a matter of substance.

This is a way the Russians have of insisting on the right to use their veto, which they have done 43 times since the U. N. was founded. Malik did not explain, but the implication in Western delegations was that he would use the veto to bar hearing anyone if the Communist North Koreans were not invited to the Council table.

Malik told the Council:

"The issue is: Will the Council take up and adopt measures for the peaceful settlement of the Korean conflict or will military action in Korea continue as a result of

Vital London Session

Speedup of Western Europe's Defenses Urged by Pact Chiefs

London, Aug. 4 (AP).—The civilian directors of the 12-nation North Atlantic Alliance wound up a 10-day meeting here today convinced the over-all defenses of the whole area must be strengthened rapidly.

A communique announced that finding. It said the group, known as the Council of Deputies, is adjourning for 18 days to consult the home governments "in order to further plans for the increase of forces which shall be accomplished in the near future."

The deputies discussed the whole question with representatives of the American-British-French standing military group, who had flown to London from Washington. They also reviewed reports submitted to them by various agencies of the Alliance.

These agencies have been charged by the council with laying down a program for accelerating production of certain undisclosed high priority armaments

Recommendations for fulfilling this program have been called for by the end of this month, the communique said.

The agencies include the military production and supply board, the defense financial and economic committee and the North Atlantic planning board for ocean shipping.

The American chairman of the council, Charles M. Spofford, told the deputies about his country's twin programs for rearming itself and its friends. The communique said the deputies "expressed their appreciation of these measures."

Informants said later the council's recommendations for boosting armed forces would not necessarily apply to all the pact partners—the United States, Canada, Britain, France, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands, Luxembourg, Norway, Denmark, Portugal and Iceland.

They reported a definite time table has been laid down, but would not disclose its details.

Enemy Massing 2 More Divisions For Pusan Drive; Marines in Line

Tokyo, (Saturday) Aug. 5 (AP).—North Korean troops were expected to loose today an all-out smash on the southern front aimed at Pusan, the beachhead port 35 miles east of the quiet battle line.

The United States Eighth Army, charged with holding the Southeast Korean beachhead until a counter-offensive can be launched, reported this development in a communique.

It said there were "unconfirmed reports" that indicated "the enemy may launch an attack east of Chinju today." Chinju is 55 miles west of Pusan.

Patrols from the United States Twenty-fifth Infantry Division moved out aggressively on this front, and were in continuous contact with the enemy, the communique said.

General MacArthur's headquarters earlier said two more Red divisions were moving up for the attack on the southern front.

Reds Moving up in North

Northward, the North Koreans were moving up to the last-ditch Naktong river defense line, which curls to within seven miles of Taegu. This is the frontline supply city 55 air miles northwest of Pusan.

The Eighth Army communique said neither the Twenty-fourth Infantry nor the First Cavalry Division had made any important patrol contact with the enemy on that front.

This indicated that the North Koreans were surprised by the abrupt United States and South Korean withdrawal behind the river, and had not yet brought up sizable forces.

South Korean covering forces on the northern front were being forced back steadily by enemy pressure, the communique said.

The main body of the South Koreans was digging in on stout positions in the hills back of the Naktong River, 35 miles or more north and northeast of Taegu.

Marine Fliers Burn 4 Towns

Marine carrier-based planes for the second straight day yesterday lashed at enemy troops and transportation targets on the Southern front, a Navy release said.

Four towns were burned out. Two bridges and eight anti-aircraft batteries were badly damaged in the Chinju area. The Marine fighters rained bombs, rockets and bullets on the targets.

A sharp, United States counter-attack Thursday checked the Red drive temporarily on the southern front about 20 miles east of Chinju. The enemy was hurled back, leaving a counted 600 dead on the field.

There was no letup in the Red pressure, however, on that doorway to Pusan.

Bracing for the main battle that was sure to come, the Americans hurried up reinforcements of elements of the First Marine and Second Infantry divisions to undisclosed places at the front.

A field dispatch from AP Correspondent Don Whitehead said the counterattack was made by the 27th Regimental Combat Team of the United States 25th Infantry Division. It met the attacking Reds

Rhee Aid Plea Was Rejected, Senator Says

Gen. Roberts Tells Of Fear So. Korea Would Attack North

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Seven months before the invasion of South Korea the Administration turned down a request from President Syngman Rhee for arms, Senator Knowland (R., Calif.) said yesterday.

Knowland told reporters he had taken Rhee's appeal personally to "officials" here after a visit to Korea last fall. Rhee assured him, he said, that if the South Korean army of 100,000 men were adequately armed it would not be used for aggression against its Communist neighbor to the north.

Knowland made his statement after emerging from a closed session of the Senate Armed Services Committee where Brig. Gen. William L. Roberts was reported to have said Rhee's request for arms had been turned down because some people feared they would be used to attack North Korea. Roberts headed the United States military mission to South Korea until shortly before the Communist attack last June.

Truman Asks $1.15 Billions Additional in Defense Funds

By the United Press

President Truman asked Congress yesterday for an extra $1,155,930,000 in military funds, including 950 million dollars to build up the Navy's air arm.

The funds also included $170,930,000 for Army and Navy public works construction and 35 million dollars for Defense Secretary Louis Johnson's contingency fund. They are in addition to the $10,517,000,000 Mr. Truman asked to boost military strength in the Korean crisis.

Added to other defense requests since the Korean war started, the Administration now has asked Congress for more than 16 billion dollars in new appropriations. They would bring defense spending for the present fiscal year, including foreign arms aid, to more than $31,500,000,000.

The White House said the new requests "are to provide for needs which had not been fully determined" when Mr. Truman sent his first Korean war request to Congress. Congressional sources had said the Navy plane request was in the offing.

The idea is to build the Navy's air arm to a level comparable with the new Air Force goal of 69 groups. How many Navy planes will be bought with the new funds was not disclosed.

But the Navy was slated to get about $1,095,000,000 for plane buying in regular appropriations this year—or enough for 817 planes. Mr. Truman then included $646,269,000 for Navy plane buying in his emergency request. The new request would boost the total to about $2,691,000,000.

The public works funds—including $84,952,000 for the Army and $85,978,000 for the Navy—would go for projects directly connected with the defense effort in line with Mr. Truman's announced policy of laying aside all others for the time being.

The proposed increase in Johnson's contingency fund would boost its total to about 85 million dollars.

Here are the major military money requests Mr. Truman has made of Congress since the start of the Korean war:

$10,517,000,000 in general defense funds; 950 million dollars for more Navy planes; 600 million dollars to speed stockpiling of critical materials; 18 million dollars for repair and reactivation of reserve merchant ships; four billion dollars for arms aid to free nations.

Total: $16,085,000,000.

10 Cents for Some

5-Cent Fare Boost Approved On AB&W by ICC Examiner

An Interstate Commerce Commission examiner yesterday recommended most of the fare increases asked by the A. B. & W. Transit Co. for bus rides between Washington and nearby Virginia points.

Under his recommendation, the fares would be increased generally by 5 cents in each zone. Riders to and from certain points in Fairfax County would pay 10 cents more, however.

The examiner, H. C. Lawton, did not agree with a proposed 30-cent fare between Washington and Annandale. He recommended 25 cents. The present rate is 20 cents.

A proposed fare of 45 cents to and from Fort Belvoir, Va., over direct routes by way of Alexandria and Route 1, was approved by the examiner. This would be an increase of 10 cents.

However, the bus company has proposed a new Washington-Fort Belvoir through service over the Shirley hwy. and Virginia Routes 617 and 613, for which it asked a 60-cent fare. The service would be run during heavy weekend and holiday travel.

Lawton said if the new service is established, its fare should not exceed the proposed charge for the more direct line.

Specifically, the new fares would be 20 cents cash or 17½ cents in tokens in the second zone, where the present charge is 15 cents cash or 12½ cents in tokens. In the third zone, the fare would increase from 15 cents to 20 cents cash. Beyond, where fares are now 20 to 45 cents, 5 cents would be added.

The increase would be 10 cents, however, for trips between Washington and the Open Air Theater on Route 1 in Mount Vernon, certain points on the Mount Vernon hwy. south of Alexandria, Engleside on Route 1 in Fairfax County, and Fort Belvoir.

The present 10-cent fare to the Pentagon and other nearby military installations in Virginia would not be affected by the increases.

Bad News for North Korea

New Bazooka-Like Shells To Reach Big Guns in a Week

NYHT News Service

Army ordnance officials disclosed yesterday that their second piece of "bad news" for the North Koreans will be in action within a week.

This one they described as "really bad" compared to the first of the Army's new "secret weapons," the 3.5-inch bazooka, thrown into the Korean campaign on July 20.

The new weapon is the first successful artillery shell version of the bazooka's devastating "shaped charge," and it will "kill any tank in the world as far as a gunner can see it and hit it."

The first consignment is being rushed off the production line and will be flown to Korea. The shell has an easy combat range of 1000 yards compared to the 3.5-inch bazooka's 100 yards or less. It possesses the artillery shell's inherent advantage of high-velocity accuracy over long distances, which is completely lacking in the slow-flying bazooka rocket. It reportedly can pierce armor 10 or 12 inches thick.

It is designed for use in the 90-millimeter guns, the main weapon mounted by American tanks in Korea. The experts said it will make them the master of any tank ever built.

It is planned to use the deadly shaped charge shell only in combat emergencies, rather than as a standard projectile, because the new shell will be in scarce supply at first.

"You might say that the new shell is like the shotgun 'pumpkin-ball' or lead slug ammunition a turkey hunter slips in one pocket—just in case he happens to run across a bear," one officer said. "We plan to have a few of them in the corner behind every 90-millimeter gun on the front so they can be slipped into the barrel whenever the situation calls for something better than 'bird shot.'"

She Was So Pretty Those Marines Just Let Her Go

With the Marines in Korea, Aug. 4 (U.P.).—The Marines closed all refugee traffic in their front line area today to keep enemy spies and guerillas from infiltrating.

Marine sentries challenged and brought in several Korean civilians for questioning.

Scores of curious Marines gathered about as intelligence officers started to question the suspects.

The local Mata Hari may have been guilty as sin. But she was very pretty and they let her go.

Fliers Spread Havoc; Attacks Set Record

6 U. S. Jets Join Defense Of Formosa

Taipei, Formosa, Aug. 4 (AP).—Six United States jet fighters—vanguard of American air units assigned to defend Formosa against Chinese Reds—announced their own arrival today with thundering low-level sweeps over the northern part of this Chinese Nationalist headquarters island.

Crowds clapped their hands as the roaring jets streaked overhead.

General MacArthur conferred with Generallissimo Chiang Kai-shek Monday on supplying United States military aid for the defense of Formosa against a threatened Communist attack.

A Nationalist cabinet spokesman announced the arrival of the jets in a written statement, though it was unnecessary.

He also announced the arrival of Maj. Gen. Howard M. Turner, commander of the Thirteenth United States Air Force, from the Philippines.

The jets (presumably from the Thirteenth Air Force) landed at an airfield at Hsinchu, on the coast 30 miles southwest of Taipei.

Their presence, and the prospective arrival of more United States air units, was a big addition to the Nationalist air force.

Until their arrival, Nationalist airmen faced the prospect of meeting Soviet-built jets with nothing capable of matching them.

Another Nationalist announcement said Brig. Gen. Alonzo P. Fox and a group of experts had arrived from MacArthur's Tokyo headquarters to set up a liaison office in Taipei. Fox is deputy chief of staff for the Far East command.

Fox and his assistants will make an island-wide study of Formosa's defenses and military needs.

There was no sign when the Reds might begin their long-expected attempt to conquer Formosa.

Dr. Wellington Koo, Nationalist China's Ambassador to the United States, told a news conference in Taipei yesterday MacArthur's visit to Formosa was highly significant to United Staees-China relations and stimulating to other Asiatic nations, particularly those threatened by Communist invasion.

"The United Stats is determined to face and to overcome the danger in the cause of general world peace and freedom," the Central News Agency quoted Koo. "It also shows its willingness and readiness to extend its cooperation to other peace-loving nations."

More Chaplains Asked By Cardinal Spellman

New York, Aug. 4 (AP).—Francis Cardinal Spellman issued a call today for more Catholic chaplains to serve with America's growing armed forces.

As head of the church's military ordinate in this country, the cardinal called the attention of all United States bishops to the need for "additional appointments to the chaplains corps from their respective dioceses."

Cardinal Spellman called for volunteers from among the priests of the New York archdiocese, especially those ordained between 1940 and 1947.

Tokyo, Saturday, Aug. 5 (AP).—Allied warplanes in their largest number of combat sorties of the war Friday spread flaming havoc over enemy supply lines behind the front.

Both land and carrier based U. S. Marine fighters joined Air Force jets and Mustangs and Australian F-51s in widespread assualts on enemy troop concentrations, communication lines and artillery installations.

A Fifth Air Force spokesman said a record 452 combat sorties were flown.

A 10,000-ton North Korean ship at the port of Inchon on the west coast, seven locomotives knocked out, one span over the Nam river knocked out and two others damaged, barge traffic on the Naktong river shot up and eight anti-aircraft batteries silenced.

Marines Fly From Land Base

It was the first time Marine pilots operated from a base in Korea. They flew with Fifth Air Force Mustang pilots in the Hypochon area southwest o fTaegu, 55 air miles northwest of Pusan.

Air control and fighter bomber pilots reported the Reds were building up troops and supplies in the Kochang and Kumchon areas, both west of Taegu. This indicated a probable impending offensive against Taegu, a key base city only 7 miles northeast of the nearest bend in the Naktong River.

United Nations forces are using the river as a main line of defense.

Eight tanks were sighted in the Kumchon area northeast of Taegu and the airmen also detected Reds hiding supplies under trees.

Red Soldiers Are Scattered

Earlier it was announced that rocket and machine gun strafing has scattered Communist soldiers moving to the new United Nations defense line on the Naktong.

Eight Navy Corsairs bombed and rocketed villages west of the river. They left them in flames.

Meanwhile, land- and carrier-based United States planes claimed destruction of two key North Korean targets—an ammunition plant at Hungnam and a gasoline refinery at Wonsan.

Hungnam is on the east coast 118 miles north of the thirty-eighth parallel. Wonsan is a port city on the same coastline 10 miles north of the parallel.

Pauley Called Again for Quiz

Mystified Senators yesterday summoned Edwin W. Pauley to reappear Monday before the Senate Armed Services Committee to restate the kind of policy he recommended on Korea in 1946.

Members were far from clear on what he said at a committee hearing Thursday. At the insistence of Senator Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.) Pauley was recalled.

Pauley, United States reparations representative to Korea after the war, told the committee he was convinced after a trip to the Far East that Russia was a "deliberate aggressor" and probably would attack South Korea in due time. He said he presented a series af recmmendations to President Truman.

Some committee members thought his recommendations were ignored; others thought he said they were carried out.

Pauley also testified he recommended war with Russia if Moscow refused to agree to a united Korea with a "representative" provisional government.

and bested them in a furious 4-hour fight.

MacArthur's summary said that the heaviest fighting was along an arc extending from a point 20 miles southeast of Chinju to 11 miles east and to 15 miles northeast.

Action elsewhere along the southern front consisted of patrols by both sides.

MacArthur said fighting was "continuous, with heavy artillery and mortar fire from the enemy" at the northern tip of the U. N. beachhead—Yongdok on the east coast. He reported the defenders' positions as "stable."

Elsewhere—in the mid-section of the 125-mile long angular line—the fighting was "disengaged," the U. N. supreme commander said.

That was along the Naktong River, where the sorely-tried United States 24th Infantry Division dug in on the east banks.

The 24th commander, Maj. Gen. John H. Church, said it was the best position his men had yet had and they intended to hold it. There was a little shelling across the river, but American tactical planes kept the enemy shaken up on the west bank.

MacArthur's headquarters said 45 Red tanks, which it reported yesterday as moving toward Chinju from the north, "have been found to be wrecks of tanks previously destroyed."

The Far East Air Forces said 1300 tons of bombs dropped on Hungnam in three mass attacks by B-29s have "definitely halted" production of ammunition and other war material in that main North Korean industrial center.

Hungnam "can no longer be considered a major factor in the Korean war," the air forces said in a release.

The counterattack that slowed down the Reds on the southern front Thursday wiped out an entire enemy regiment. The colonel in command of the Red force was killed.

Lieut. Col. John "Mike" Michaelis of Lancaster, Pa., led the United States 27th Regimental Combat Team in the wild action.

The United States punch forced the invaders to withdraw, and delayed their buildup for the push to Masan on the highway to the big port of Pusan.

A Tokyo headquarters spokesman said many Red troops coming into the battle on the southern front were from Korean settlements in Soviet-dominated Manchuria.

Many are Japanese-trained and veterans of the Chinese Communist wars, he said.

The United States 25th Division moved to the southern front in a quick shift from the Kumchon area, to the north. The 25th took over for the battered 24th Division, which was sent to the central river front.

On the battlefront, but not yet officially reported in action, were elements of the Second Infantry Division, the First Marine Division, and the Fifth Regimental Combat Team from Hawaii.

The marines are equipped with 45-ton Pershing tanks, super-bazookas and flame-throwers.

Enemy Shortage Of Ammunition For Artillery Seen

With U. S. Forces in Korea (Saturday), Aug. 5 (U.P.).—A possibility was seen here today that North Korean troops are running out of artillery ammunition.

In the Chinju area, where some of the most intense fighting has taken place, there has been a heartening lack of enemy artillery. Captured prisoners of war say this is caused by a lack of ammunition.

Observers pointed out that this sounded logical since the enemy usually saves his artillery for the time when the Americans are dug in. For the past few days, the Yank lines in the Chinju area have varied little.

Gen. H. J. D. Meyer, commander of artillery of the Twenty-fourth Division said enemy artillery seems to consist chiefly of 76 and 120-mm cannon which are usually not too accurate except for stationary targets.

Mothers Abandon Children by Score In Fleeing Fronts

Taegu, Korea, Aug. 4 (AP).—Korean women fleeing from the war fronts are abandoning children by the scores with hopes that they will be cared for. South Korean police reported today.

Authorities estimated there are about three million helpless refugees in South Korea ranging from one to seven years old.

Chief Maria Ro of the women's police said mothers leave their children at railway stations with notes asking the police to care for them until the mothers can again find food and a home.

The chief showed what he said was a typical note. It was from a woman who had fled Taejon, now in the hands of North Koreans. The note was left with a year-old baby at the railway station, and read:

"Dear Women Police, Please take care of this infant for me. I shall return your kindness if I can survive and see you."

Lee Yoon Yung, minister of social affairs, said his ministry operates 301 refugee centers trying to feed and care for tens of thousands of refugees crowding inside the allied perimeter.

Marines Use Helicopter For Rescues

By Robert C. Miller

With the Marines in Korea, Aug. 4 (U.P.).—Part of the war in the air stood still today when the Marines flew a new weapon over the Korean battlefields.

The new weapon is the helicopter and its ability to stand still in the air is going to put this war on a "paying basis," a pilot said.

The flying windmills went into action for the first time today and carried out reconnaissance flights, evacuated wounded and ran a general messenger and taxi service.

I flew on a reconnaissance patrol with Lieut. Gus Lueddeke of Maplewood, N. J., and Maj. Vincent Gottschalk of Pontiac, Mich., scouting ridges along the western front for enemy guerillas reportedly working down toward the Marine's flanks.

Lueddeke said helicopters are as indispensable as jeeps in this mountainous country. We can hedgehop anywhere, bring in supplies, carry out wounded, spot for artillery and give ground troops the closest reconnaissance they've ever had.

"One of the greatest contributions these things have made in the war is Marine morale. Every kid down there knows that no matter where he goes we will get him out if he gets hit There will be no more abandoning our wounded."

We zoomed down a valley, hovered closely over a stream of refugees and watched the faces of the amazed people on the ground watching this strange contraption. Farmers grabbed their cows and hung on as the ship balanced overhead.

Just as we took off, a sister ship landed with an injured Maine rescued from atop a mountain where he had fallen on patrol.

"There are a couple more men up there," Gottschalk said, pointing to the ridge where a third helicopter hovered. "We're taking them out and bringing in supplies to the observation post. It sure saved a lot of work lugging supplies and ammunition up the mountains.

"And for the first time, we are going to be able to put outposts on top of mountains that can't be climbed. The North Koreans had been infiltrating spots like that."

Lueddeke took her over the last ridge and down into the port of Pusan.

"What part of town are you going?" He asked me like a cab driver. 'Will the dock area be OK?"

We plunked down in a vacant lot and climbed out.

"This is only the beginning," Lueddeke said. "Once we get those 10 passengers H-0-4's over here we will really get this war on a paying basis."

He didn't have to convince me. Within an hour after leaving the front I had ice-cold water, a hot bath and a telephone. The trip would have taken three, dusty hours by jeep.

Invasion of Tibet Coming Soon, Says Red Army General

Hong Kong, Saturday, Aug. 5 (AP). Gen. Liu Po-Cheng, commander of the Chinese Communist Second Field Army, has announced flatly that Red troops soon "will march into Tibet." The Red press said today.

The announcement, carried by the pro-Communist Chinese language newspaper Wen Wei Pao, was represented as part of a lengthy report to the Communists' southwest military and administrative committee which ended a five-day meeting in Chungking July 31.

The one-eyed Chinese general was quoted as saying the move against Tibet would have two objectives:

1. To drive the "aggressive influence of American imperialism" from the mountain nation, and

2. "To consolidate the Western line of national defense."

4000 Canadian Troops Expected to Be Sent

Ottawa, Aug. 4 (AP).—Canada will send a special force of infantry and supporting ground troops, possibly 3600 to 4000 strong, to fight under the United Nations flag in Korea, it was indicated authoritatively today.

Announcement of the decision and a special session of Parliament to approve it is expected to be made by Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent Monday after the third in a series of cabinet meeting on defense and Korea.

Parliament in India Supports Nehru's Policies on Korea

New Delhi, India, Aug. 4 (AP).—The policy of Prime Minister Nehru's government in supporting United Nations action in Korea was approved today by Parliament, following a two-day debate.

Nehru denied he is trying to appease Russia and China by his position that the Chinese Communists should be seated in the U. N. He declared India is following a policy of independence of action.

Replying to members who urged that India send a token military force to South Korea, Nehru said no such force is being sent because it would disrupt India's military establishment. India has offered a medical unit to the U. N. forces.

But, said Nehru, the sending of a military force would be a gesture "which might embarrass our position in case of the development of the Korean war in a further direction."

The prime minister said he is not the least bit afraid of dollar imperialism or of any action by Britain.

"What I am afraid of is that we will sit complacently doing nothing," he said.

Nehru said the vast majority of the people in the world do not want war and that there was too much talk of Korea in terms of world conflict. Such talk, he contended, would bring about an atmosphere which might bring a world war.

"No problem is solved by bomb, bayonet and tanks," he declared.

A member of Parliament asked Nehru to explain why India had not recognized Israel. The member, H. V. Kamath, observed that Israel was in existence long before Communist China, which India has recognized.

Nehru smiled, but did not reply. Deputy Foreign Minister B. V. Keskar told Parliament the question of recognizing Israel was under consideration.

South African Air Squadron Planned To Help in Korea

Johannesburg, Union of South Africa, Saturday, Aug. 5 (AP).—The South African cabinet decided today to recruit a volunteer airforce fighter squadron with ground personnel to join United Nations forces in Korea.

It also was announced that in view of international tension it was decided to expand the regular South African armed forces. No figures were given on the size of the proposed volunteer airforce or expansion of the regular units.

A statement said that "liaison has been maintained with the United States to ascertain whether there is any assistance other than of military character the union could make available. Since it now appears there is no alternative assistance, the government has decided special efforts should be made to render military aid."

Carrier Boxer Breaks Record Across Pacific

San Francisco, Aug. 4 (U.P.).—The Navy's big aircraft carrier Boxer churned through the Golden Gate today to set a new world speed record for a Pacific crossing.

The 27,000-ton ship made the crossing from Japan in 7 days, 18 hours and 36 minutes, the Navy announced officially. It broke its own record, set last month, when it rushed vitally needed planes to the Korean front.

Reds Friendly, Offering Trade Pact to Iran

Tehran, Iran, Aug. 4 (AP).—Well-informed sources said today that Russia is making the "most friendly advances to Iran, proposing a barter and trade deal between the two countries.

Western diplomatic circles viewed the move as part of a campaign to ease tension between the Soviets and their southern neighbors which rose at the start of the Korean war.

The barter deal, which has been talked of before in Russia's alternating hot and cold relations with Iran, was reported to have been raised again this week by Soviet Ambassador Ivan Sadchikov in a talk with Iran's Premier Gen. Ali Razmara. A source in a position to know said Sadchikov told Razmara Moscow is most enthusiastic to conclude a trade deal.

The new Russian attitude is in contrast with the tough notes from Moscow earlier this year rapping the presence of American military advisers in Iran and protesting Iranian aerial surveys along the border between the two countries.

Razmara, who has taken pains not to antagonize the Russians, reportedly insisted, nevertheless, that the proposed trade talks are not likely to be fruitful unless the Russians first released a small number of Iranian soldiers seized on the border in recent months, and returned 21 million dollars in Iranian gold reserves which have been held in Moscow banks since the war.

The latest Russian offer reinforced the opinion of American and other western diplomatic circles that any danger of possible invasion of Iran by Soviet troops is slight at present.

Saigon to Curb Reds When U. S. Aid Arrives

Saigon, French Indochina, Aug 4 (U.P.).—Police ordered special security measures tonight against Communist violence when the U. S. freighter Steel Rover docks here with the first seaborne shipment of American military aid.

The ship's exact arrival time is a military secret, but officials said it is expected shortly.

French to Increase Munitions Output

Socialist Quits

Laborites' Edge Is Cut To Only 5

London, Aug. 4 (U.P.).—A Socialist member of Parliament resigned from the Labor Party today and called for a coalition government led by wartime Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

"There is an overwhelming danger of all civilization being destroyed," Raymond Blackburn declared in Birmingham. "In Mr. Churchill we have one of the great men of genius of all times and whose advice we have often ignored at our cost."

Blackburn's resignation pares Prime Minister Clement Atlee's majority to five.

Blackburn said he had no intention of joining the Conservatives, but will remain in the House of Commons as an independent. But if a split comes, Blackburn's indorsement of Churchill may lead him to vote against the Government.

Meanwhile, Britain moved swiftly toward a near-war footing.

Orders have gone out to some plants to switch from consumer to defense production. Industrialists and union leaders will be called to "planning meetings" in the next few weeks.

The Ministry of Supply today ordered 3000 new jet planes for the fighter command, a spokesman said. The jets—Meteors and Vampires—will be used as reserves for Britain's front-line fighter squadrons, he said. Unconfirmed reports said aircraft plants were the first to receive orders to drop work on commercial production.

Paris, Aug. 4 (AP).—France is proposing, with American help, to pump a sizable flood of money into munitions plants making everything from pistols to tanks, informed sources said tonight.

She also plans to increase her 476,845-man army by an unspecified amount, launch a five-year program of building up the air force and improve morale by increasing pay of the armed services.

A French note on the subject is to be given the United States Saturday. It answers a request by the United States to all its 11 North Atlantic Pact allies for information on contributions they are prepared to make to bolster the West against the threat of Communist aggression.

British Proposal

The British government announced today it proposed to start a three-year, $9,250,000,000 program, providing the United States gave substantial backing. President Truman commented in Washington that he was pleased and hoped other members of the Alliance would take similar steps.

Ambassador Herve Alphand, chief French delegate to the Atlantic Pact Council of Deputies now meeting in London, is to hand the French memorandum to U. S. Delegate Charles M. Spofford Saturday. Spofford, is was learned here, is to fly to Washington at the weekend.

The 1950 French budget provides 420 billion francs ($1,200,000,000) for defense. That's about 18 percent of the total budget, the lowest percentage earmarked for defense in 25 years.

Some French officials are hoping to increase their reserve cushion of trained manpower by extending the conscription training period from one year to 18 months.

About 300,000 men of the French army are stationed in France, Germany and Austria. The rest are in Indo-China, where France is fighting Communist-led guerillas, or in North Africa on police duty.

500,000 Ready

A military source said about 500,000 men with World War II combat experience could be recruited immediately and estimated that a backlog of four million to five million men could be trained in two years.

Some American officials have suggested that the Western allies should build military strength on the basis of a "balanced force" with each country being strong in a single phase of warfare.

Defense Minister Jules Moch disagrees with the theory. The French plan, it is believed, calls for an Atlantic army of some 40 divisions, made up of elements of British, French and American forces.

Cominform Says Tito Plans War On Neighbors

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Aug. 4 (NYHT).—The Cominform has begun another wave of attacks against Marshall Tito, charging that he is rapidly preparing for aggressive war against four "People's Democracies" that border on Yugoslavia. These four are Albania, Bulgaria, Romania and Hungary.

The Budapest radio yesterday afternoon accused Tito of "urgently making war preparations."

The touch-off signal for the latest attack appears to have been an article that is reported by the Belgrade press to have appeared in the Moscow newspaper, Izvestia, earlier this week. It reportedly said Yugoslavia is seeding up the tempo of its "provocations" along the frontier of the Soviet satellite states.

Cripps Ordered to Rest

London, Aug. 4 (U.P.).—Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir Stafford Cripps today was ordered by his doctors to take a complete rest during the two-month parliamentary recess.

Australians in Japan Will Fight for Korea

Brisbane, Australia, Aug. 4 (U.P.).—Army and Navy Minister Josiah Francis said today that an Australian infantry force "fully equipped in Australia" would be formed in Japan for the Korean war by the end of August.

"We are better equipped in Australia than at any stage of Australian peacetime history," he said.

'To Escape War'

GI, Briton Join Reds, Eisler Claims

Berlin, Aug. 4 (U.P.).—Soviet Zone Propaganda Chief Gerhart Eisler said today that two Allied soldiers had taken refuge in Communist East Germany "to live and work in peace" rather than fight in Germany or Korea.

Pvt. Natzkakula

United States Army officials identified one of them as Pfc. Robert Natzkakula of Natrona, Pa., who went AWOL April 17 when he was due to be shipped home for a bad conduct discharge.

The other was a Britisher—Corpl. John Keith Waller of Romford, Essex, missing since May, British Army Public Relations spokesmen said.

Eisler made his announcement at a press conference to which Allied correspondents were not invited. His statement, however, was circulated by the Russian-controlled ADN news agency.

Natzkakula, United States authorities said, was a defendant in three courts-martial between January 1 and April 17, when he disappeared.

ADN quoted Natzkakula:

"We young American soldiers very often discusser conditions in the East and West. We all know what war means. Many comrades of the American Army, the British army and the French army think the same as myself.

"We soldiers are being trained and prepared for a new war, which we young people do not want. I am for peace and against the useless annihilization of human beings in a new world war."

Achesons Fly to Visit Daughter for Weekend

Saranac Lake, N. Y., Aug. 4 (AP).—Secretary of State Dean Acheson and his wife arrived by plane today for a weekend visit with their daughter, Mary, who is recovering from an operation. The Achesons came here in an Air Force transport.

Their daughter, Mrs. William P. Bundy, is recuperating at a private camp at nearby Upper St. Regis.

The Achesons were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Philip Jessup.

Navy to Grant Some Direct Commissions

The Navy announced yesterday it will accept applications for direct commissions from civilian doctors, dentists, nurses, medical interns, medical and dental students and electronics technicians.

It continued a ban, however, on applications for direct commissions from civilians in other fields. The ban was ordered because of a "heavy work load" on Naval officer procurement and recruiting stations.

Soviet Demands U. N. Order U. S. Troops From Korea

Security Council acts of commission or omission?"

Warren R. Austin, United States Delegate, countered immediately with an accusation that Malik as usual was confronting the Council with "some deviation, some novelty."

He demanded that Malik get on with business and put first things first—to begin consideration of the American resolution intended to confine the conflict to Korea.

Sir Gladwyn Jebb, of Britain, said "it would be out of order to have them (the North Koreans) come here and argue they are the victims of aggression." Jebb said the North Koreans first must put themselves "right" with the U. N.

Malik did not explain his reasons for wanting the Chinese Red to take part in the Korean peace moves. No one at the Council table touched on the Chinese Communist problem today.

The Council voted yesterday against considering the question of Chinese representation at this time and the tired delegates apparently did not want to open that argument again.

The United States and other Western delegates have insisted that the issue of Chinese representation has nothing to do with settling the Korean war. The Russians repeatedly have sought to link the two.

The result of the solid week of Council meetings—it has been in session every day since Monday—is this: Malik has returned to the Council, has not walked out again and the Council has barred a Russian move to oust Nationalist China and open the door to the Red Chinese.

Russia has called the United States the aggressor in Korea, and the United States has replied the charge is old propaganda.

Several delegates expressed wonder, outside the meeting, why the Americans did not name the Russians as the aggressor in Korea

But one Western delegate explained that when the United States names the Russians as the aggressor in any area, it must be militarily prepared to back up its words.

This diplomat indicated the United States is not yet ready to support its words from a military point and must choose its course with care.

The Council adjourned at 4:38 p. m. (E.S.T.) until 2 p. m. Tuesday. It still must decide on hearing the North Koreans and on what, if anything, to do about its previous invitation to the South Koreans, who were seated as Council observers before Malik took office as president.

Reds Beat the U. S. To War Materials In West Germany

Frankfurt, Germany, Aug. 4 (U.P.).—Large supplies of critical materials—including an entire German steel mill—have slipped through western controls into the Iron Curtain countries, western authorities said today.

American purchasers, here to buy German scrap required for the huge United States rearmament effort, are irritated by the continuing shipment of such items to Hungary, Poland and Czechoslovakia while they are able to buy only a fraction of what the United States needs.

Western authorities said they suspected the entire mill, believed shipped to Hungary, was just one of the growing list of items sent from western Germany. Trade experts said they were "seriously concerned" by the gaping holes that developed in controls on exports.

The officials said a survey is being made of the whole system of export controls and German enforcement, with a view to plugging at least some of the holes.

'Hard to Believe,' Deserter's Kin Says

Natrona, Pa., Aug. 4 (U.P.).—The family of Robert Natzkakula said today he "never had a political thought in his head" and that they couldn't believe he deserted the Army to become a Communist.

"Bob never had a political thought in his head," his brother, Walter said. "It's hard for me to believe."

Natzkakula will be 20 years old in December. He joined the Army 30 months ago after the death of his mother.

Escape From Reds Lands Lieutenant In Tax Man's Toils

With the First Cavalry Division, Saturday, Aug. 5 (U.P.).—Lieut. Stephen Gubenia of New York who got caught in the middle of many Korean Reds for 14 hours, played a desperate game of tag with them.

He was shot at continuously, fell into a ravine and hung by his suspenders from an apple tree; lost his $89 binoculars and a fifth of scotch; climbed up and down hills all night; killed an enemy he stumbled over in the dark; and had other adventures.

Exhausted, he finally found his unit. He also found a letter from the Treasury Department, noting $1.20 shortage on the last income tax return.

"I mailed it to them right away—about 2000 Korean won," Gubenia said. "I explained I am presently occupied entirely with military matters and asked them to send me the change in airmail stamps."

New Riots Feared

Leopoldists' Split Delays Power Shift

Brussels, Aug. 4 (U.P.).—A split in the ranks of the ruling Catholic Party threatened today to plunge Belgium into a second round of rioting and sabotage.

The split forced postponement until Tuesday of today's meeting of the Lower House of Parliament and threatened to torpedo the three-party agreement easing King Leopold from the throne.

The Lower House had been scheduled to debate the bill authorizing the Monarch to transfer his powers to his 19-year-old son, Crown Prince Baudiouin, as a step toward abdication.

A hitch developed when two Catholic members of a parliamentary committee studying the bill voted against it, endangering passage when it comes up in the House.

The two were among a group reported to have received anonymous letters warning their houses would be blown up if they voted for the delegation of powers.

Socialist members of the House announced they would vote for the bill only on condition "we receive sufficient guarantees that the exercise of royal prerogatives by Prince Baudouin will be independent"—that is, not under Leopold's influence.

Premier Jean Duvieusart, at a meeting of the Socialist Christian (Catholic) group, was reported to have said the party at no time deserted the King's cause in reaching agreement with the Socialists and Liberals. He said it was Leopold himself who wavered when faced with Socialist threats of civil war.

Yank Reports Seeing Russian With Enemy

Westover Field, Mass., Aug. 4 (AP).—A C-47 transport arrived here from the West Coast with 49 battle casualties from the Korean War.

Pfc. Daniel Shoffstall, 20, Lancaster, Pa., said he saw a "big blnd Russian" flee a crippled North Korean tank when it was hit by a 3.5-inch bazooka rocket on the Korean front.

Shoffstall said one of his comrades in the Twenty-Fourth Division's Thirty-Fourth Infantry Regiment shot the Russian.

Council of Europe Planning To Denounce Red Aggression

Strasbourg, France, Aug. 4 (AP).—The Foreign Ministers of the Council of Europe today agreed to issue a forthright denunciation of Communist aggression.

The Ministers appointed a drafting committee to write into their "keynote" message to the Consultative Assembly a clause applauding the United Nations stand in Korea.

The action was taken in response to a dramatic plea by Italian Foreign Minister Count Carlo Sforza. The message, to be presented to the Assembly's opening session Monday, will not specifically mention Korea, informed sources said, but it will leave little doubt as to the specific case of aggression.

Informed sources said Sforza spurred the Ministers to positive action by pointing out that the Council of Europe can not retire to some isolated political island. The Council's charter forbids talk about defense.

Earlier, the Ministers took their first step toward transforming the Council of Europe into a real legislative body.

The ministers, who until now have withheld power from the Consulative Assembly, agreed to a recommendation giving the Assembly the right to communicate directly with the Parliaments of member nations.

This is the first concession the ministers have made since the Assembly began to demand more power a year ago. The ministers are here to prepare for the second annual session of the Assembly.

Harriman and Party Depart for Tokyo

W. Averell Harriman, President Truman's special assistant on foreign affairs, left by plane for Tokyo yesterday to confer with General Douglas MacArthur.

He was accompanied by Lieut. Gen. Lauris Norstad, acting vice chief of staff for the Air Force, and Maj. Gen. Frank E. Lowe, a liaison officer.

Mr. Truman announced Thursday that Harriman would visit MacArthur to discuss the political situation in the Far East, in the light of the Korean War.

Capehart, Douglas on Air

Senators Paul H. Douglas (D., Ill.) and Homer E. Capehart (R., Ind.) will discuss "Controls and Taxes" over the American Forum of the Air, NBC Television, at 7 p. m. today. The program will be broadcast over NBC-AM Sunday.

McMahon Reveals duPont Deal Is for Production of H-Bomb

By The Associated Press

The hydrogen bomb project is involved in the Gobernment's negotiations with the DuPont Company for the constructions of "advanced design" atomic installations, Senator McMahon confirmed yesterday.

McMahon, a Connecticut Democrat, is chairman of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee. He made the disclosure after the committee had conferred behind closed doors with Crawford Greenwalt, president of the DuPont Company.

The Atomic Energy Commission announced Wednesday that the huge chemical concern had been selected to design, construct and operate some plants of advanced design which, the commission said, "can be used either for weapons or for fuels potentially useful for power purposes."

This guarded announcement was interpreted at the time as possibly indicating an intensified drive for perfection of a hydrogen weapon.

That's right, McMahon said; the purpose of the contract being negotiated with DuPont is "to further progress of the hydrogen bomb project."

McMahon said it hasn't been decided where the plans will be built. Previously the committee had said that the installations might require as much as 200,000 acres—an area more than 20 by 15 miles.

Van Fleet's Return

A good soldier and a modest and self-effacing man was honored on Wednesday by the City of New York in the person of Lieut. Gen. James A. Van Fleet. Van Fleet was the chief of the American military mission which "advised" the Greek army in pacifying Greece. In the process the general remolded the Greek army into a compact organization which after liquidating the Communist menace became a stabilizing influence in the troubled affairs of the Balkans. He never forgot that the strength of an army lies in the support it gets from the people. It was Van Fleet who, after the war was over, succeeded in persuading the Greek government to reduce an army swollen for fighting purposes to manageable proportions.

The United States since its emergence into a world power with vast responsibilities as the protector of the peace has produced few men of proconsular caliber. But General Van Fleet is one. The art of this kind of leadership is not easy to define. Leadership is, of course, the main component, but it is a kind of concealed leadership, capable of assuming no credit for achievement. It must be combined with a love of the people which is demonstrated to the people in action. All Greece knows that Van Fleet loves the people of Greece, but few of the people know the nature and scope of his accomplishments.

The Greeks at the top, of course, realize what Van Fleet has contributed for Greece; for instance, the wise and honored Marshal Papagos, the Greek commander-in-chief. On one occasion Van Fleet was presenting a visitor from this newspaper to the commander-in-chief. In so doing the general made a felicitous and justifiable reference to the marshal's services in guiding Greece to victory. Marshal Papagos heard him out, then, turning to the visitor, said, "You of course know that to him goes the credit," to the modest general's obvious embarrassment. General Van Fleet never forgot he was a guest in Greece. He lived with his helpful wife in the hotel, simply and even austerely, with an absence of show or importance, even though their lives were in constant danger when the campaign against the guerillas was at its height.

It is fortunate that for the operation in Greece the United States had three such men as Ambassador Grady, ECA Chief Porter, and General Van Fleet. They made a fine team, working in complete harmony, and the result of their efforts is now to be seen in a rejuvenated Greece. They have all stamped their name on Greece, and the memory that Van Fleet has left with the gallant soldiers of Greece is bright and shining as well as indelible.

Hoarding

Why does the public hoard goods and indulge in scare buying when it is deluged with statistics showing that we have abundant stores of food, and most other commodities? Does this panic reaction to statements that should be reassuring indicate disbelief in the reliability of the statistics or ignorance of the facts? The explanation may be that the people who study the outpourings of public and private statistical agencies are not the people who do most of the buying for household use. The average housewife is certainly not disposed to analyze market reports, or study data on inventories, production output, and consumption requirements. Nor is the person who remembers being misled occasionally during the last war and in consequence got stung. Perhaps we need more education at consumer levels to impress the great mass of buyers, usually women, with the value of statistical guidance. And perhaps statisticians could do a better job of influencing public buying habits through simplification and popularization of the conclusions to be deduced from masses of figures.

It is true that businessmen as well as retail buyers indulge in excess buying that results in artificial shortages, even though they cannot plead ignorance as an excuse for their actions. But much of this anticipatory buying is due to a well warranted belief that a large section of the public will not be restrained from scare buying when emergencies arise. Consequently, it is often good business to prepare for shortages that follow runs on the stocks of retail establishments. In other words, if consumers were better informed and more self-disciplined the incentive for speculative and anticipatory buying at manufacturing and wholesale levels would be greatly weakened, and the statistician would be heeded when he says there is enough of this or that commodity to meet normal demands.

U. N. Firefighters

The American delegation to the United Nations is responsible for an interesting proposal for imparting vigor to the United Nations. The plan is to create a permanent commission of the United Nations ready to undertake a roving assignment covering all troubled areas. The purpose is not only to sound the alert, but to spark the United Nations into action.

There is much merit in the proposal. It was only by a happy chance that the United Nations was alerted about Korea. On June 25, the day of the North Korean aggression, there happened to be a U. N. commission on the spot, sent there by the General Assembly. It filed a report on the very same day putting the blame squarely upon North Korea, and it was this report that was used a few hours later by Secretary General Trygve Lie as the basis of his call for action by the Security Council. But there is no assurance that the same coincidence will be repeated, and, this being true, it would be a good thing to prime the preparedness of the United Nations in the suggested manner.

The significance of the suggestion is that it comes from the United States. Hitherto we have blown hot and cold about the United Nations, always prone to write it off as a peace-preserving agency even when we were paying the most glowing lip service to it. This was, for instance, the case during the flareup on the Greek frontier, which led to the Greco-Turkish aid plan. President Truman in his address of March 13, 1947, said, "The situation is an urgent one requiring immediate action, and the United Nations and its related organizations are not in a position to extend help of the kind that is required." The President is said to have rejected the counsel to insert the qualifying phrase "as yet." It was left to Senator Vandenberg to acknowledge the authority of the United Nations—an effort that was regarded by the President and his diplomatic advisers as a meaningless gesture. Such an attitude of mind was again rampant just before the aggression in Korea.

Now we see that if there had been no United Nations, we should have had to create one. For to fight aggression as an international crime requires the fighter to be armed with the moral mandate of the peace-loving world. This at last is crystal clear among the policy-makers in Washington. If it had been clear before, then there would not have been the "unreadiness" for which so many writers are seeking scapegoats. The basic unreadiness was the failure to realize in planning the obligations undertaken under the Charter of the United Nations. These impose a readiness to cope with aggression whenever it shows its menacing face with police action, and this in turn calls for "readiness potential." Such a preoccupation has hitherto been incidental—incidental to plans for armed collision between the United States and the Soviet Union, or an old-fashioned war requiring a concentration upon strategical weapons, as, for instance, in the argument over B-36s vs. supercarriers. It isn't more billions we lacked before Korea, but more understanding.

However, better late than never, and this newspaper earnestly hopes that the proposal at Lake Success will be pushed. It is, of course, incomplete as it stands. To make the idea fruitful the roving commission needs to have at its disposal a first-class intelligence service, and the United Nations needs a set of teeth in the form of armed contingents. Judging from the reaction over Korea, there should be a favorable climate for the proposal if not in the Security Council, then in the General Assembly.

Emotion On Spain

The Democrats in the Senate who voted for the loan to Spain seem to be unmoved by the President's opposition to it. Perhaps after a few days of reflection reason might displace emotion. If the vote stands, it will play hob with our foreign policy, with the Marshall Plan, and with our leadership. To many European ears the Senate vote doubtless has already had the effect of making a lot of Muscovite propaganda sound convincing. This country in the present posture of our situation in the world simply cannot afford to make expediency a god in the conduct of foreign affairs.

Toward Europe our foreign policy is focused on creating unity—or, in the current word, integration—in Europe. The stress of late has been on military unity, but the strength of that unity depends upon integration, economic, political, and spiritual. Secretary Marshall, in his overture at Harvard, insisted that his plan should be initiated by the Europeans themselves. So the Europeans formulated their requirements for American approval in exchange for undertakings which took the form of separate agreements. Help, that is to say, was given in return for self-help, which is latterly being expressed in specific plans for integration. But there will be no integration with Franco, no matter what we do. It is not only a matter of long memories, but a composite of principles, the lack of likemindedness and common interests, as well as memories. Nor can the Europeans be expected, naturally, to share the Pyrenees thinking animating the American military, for that connotes a liberation from a Spanish beachhead, not help in meeting a frontal clash with the Russians.

The firmest bulwark of the American defense is a united Europe, and one which has confidence in American leadership, and if that is a truism, then we must let the Europeans themselves find their own unity. This is not to say that the United States must not encourage it, even press for it. On the contrary, the utmost vigor in representation is required of us, but the American purpose would be defeated if we either used a bludgeon or insisted upon their mixing oil and water. Far from uniting Europe, the Senate action would introduce a new divisive factor, and God only knows there are too many such factors already.

It will be said that no such obligation will be imposed upon either Franco or non-Spanish Europe. However, if it is thought that an ECA mission, working in isolation, will be able to effect an economic housecleaning in Spain, there is bound to be disillusionment. Even if Franco were to tolerate any interference, which is impossible to envisage, the misapplication of resources in Spain is irremediable by an outside agency with 100 million dollars to lend and no control over the spending. The mission, of course, would be left to twiddle its thumbs in Madrid. That would mean a special position for Franco—a situation which would not be exactly pleasing to the other Europeans, who are under constant reminders from ECA to meet their obligations. Indeed, when they saw that the United States didn't mean business in Spain, then there would be a tendency to regard their own Marshall aid as a handout. Such a tendency could hardly be resented.

So the Senate ought to think it through. The only result of a loan would be to put the uneasy Franco less insecurely in the saddle, and, possibly, alienate the voiceless people of Spain, as it would surely repel non-Spanish Europe, and thus undermine confidence in American strategic as well as moral leadership.

Inflation: Enemy

We earnestly second Secretary Snyder in urging prompt action to increase taxes. An enemy which is just as deadly as Communist aggression and indeed is an ally of it is inflation, and the country is now on the very verge of inflation. Mr. Snyder told the Senate Finance Committee this week that inflation cannot be curbed by the enactment of taxes after the crucial transition period has passed, regardless of how high they may later be raised. He is, of course, right. Further tax increases will certainly be required to finance the cost of the expanded military program, and this will take a little time. However, there is no need to waste a single moment on Administration proposals to eliminate excise tax reductions from the pending tax bill and extend them to television sets and deep freeze units. Nor is there any reason to postpone action on other measures. Proposals to close tax loopholes that result in large revenue losses have already been intensively studied by the House Ways and Means Committee and the Senate Finance Committee. And, as The Washington Post pointed out in a recent editorial, restoration of most of the postwar reductions in individual income-tax rates could also be easily effected and would not entail too great sacrifices. In terms of effective rates, Mr. Snyder says, the proposed increases over the present law would be only 3.4 percentage points at the top of the lowest tax bracket and about 9 percentage points in the highest bracket. In the case of married persons rates would be substantially lower than they were at the end of the war.

The recommended levy on corporate profits calls for relatively small increases in taxes on small corporations, and in a few cases provides for a net reduction in taxes owing to elimination of the so-called notch rate of the existing law. Large corporations with net incomes above $71,400, however, would pay on the average about 16 percent more taxes than under the present law. With corporation taxes running at levels close to the 1948 peak and rapidly rising, further increases in taxes will undoubtly be eventually voted and pressure for excess profits tax legislation is mounting. As Senator George rather curiously observed, "Politically we probably can't escape an excess profits tax because people will be demanding that we take profits out of war."

Nevertheless, Congress should take time to consider whether higher corporate rates on net profits might not be a preferable alternative, since it is extremely difficult to devise an equitable formula on which to base assessments. Chief Justice Vinson pointed out when, as Secretary of the Treasury, he was advocating repeal of the excess profits tax in 1945 that an excess profits tax may be justified as a war control measure in spite of numerous glaring defects, but it is "too erratic a tax engine to turn loose for even one full year of the postwar period." Experience with the tax justified that judgment, and emphasizes the necessity of giving careful study to any proposals for its reimposition. Meantime it is feasible and much wiser to enact an interim tax measure involving no major changes in the existing tax structure. Comprehensive tax legislation is time-consuming, and the longer that action is delayed on interim proposals, the harder it will be to restrain the inflationary forces unleashed by deficit financing.

Bulldozing Counsel

The fact that the National Labor Relations Board has had to ask the Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati to disregard a brief filed by its general counsel is, to use Walter Lippmann's phrase, the grand piano that broke the camel's back. In this case, involving the Vulcan Forging Co. and the CIO United Auto Workers, General Counsel Denham ignored the specific instructions of the NLRB not to present the particular brief. The friction between Mr. Denham and the NLRB is old hat, but the confusion it causes in labor matters is something else. President Truman recognized the anomaly of a semiautonomous general counsel in proposing in a reorganization plan that the functions of the counsel be consolidated with those of the board proper—but Congress rejected the plan. Thus the question of who is boss remains unsettled, and Mr. Denham obviously is forcing the issue. This is so flagrant a piece of nose-thumbing that if Mr. Denham does not resign of his own volition, it is hard to see how the President can avoid asking his removal for cause.

Russian-Born Citizens

I was recently amazed to learn that some of the defense agencies and practically all of the so-called "sensitive agencies" will not hire people who are Russian-born, despite the fact that they are loyal American citizens. While it is true that precautions should be taken in recruiting personnel for these agencies, particularly at this time, nevertheless such a hard-and-fast rule against everyone who is Russian-born places a little too much emphasis on "precaution."

A great many of these people who are not being considered for employment in these agencies, are former Government employes, who were laid off for economy reasons in nondefense agencies and who have had many years of Government experience and have proved their loyalty to this country. Furthermore, a great many of them came to this country when only minors because their parents fled either Czarist or Communist oppression, seeking refuge in a free and democratic America.

Milk For D. C.

The recent discussions regarding the importation of milk from outside areas into Washington have received a great deal of publicity. Apparently there is no question on either side but that there is ample milk in the local area to supply this District.

Milk produced locally would have a low bacteria count when brought into the processing plant for pasteurization. It has been our custom to drink fresh milk rather than that which has been pasteurized and carried half way across the country. Control of the local milk should be in the hands of the District Health Inspector.

The argument of sterilization by chemical versus steam has been frequently mentioned. The medical profession uses steam sterilization almost entirely in its operating rooms, as it is felt to be the safest and surest means of sterilization. Why should we not maintain the same standards of cleanliness in our dairies?

Warning On Controls

In time of war, can you imagine anything more outrageous and tyrannical than a Congress forcing the American people to pay billions for food jammed into caves; plus billions for regional projects; plus billions for foreign aid; and then forcing on them the added tyranny and maddening injustices of OPA kangaroo courts?

Has Congress forgotten the meat and clothing which vanished into the uncontrolled black market where only the rich could afford to buy? Has Congress forgotten the man hours wasted by harrassed business managers trying to keep up with the war effort and at the same time deal with the OPA?

Well Mr. Truman hasn't. Mr. Truman remembers all too well the enraged public reaction which lost him control of Congress in 1946 Let the dismal history of OPA repeat itself and Congressmen now in office will find themselves blamed by both the President and the public. And it will serve them right.

"Chiang's Strike"

Regarding your August 1 editorial, "Chiang's Strike," it will be noted that President Truman on June 26 said, "I am calling upon the Chinese government on Formosa to cease all air and sea operations against the mainland."

The President also added that the Seventh Fleet would see that this unilateral declaration was carried out. The Seventh Fleet was patrolling the area when Chiang made his strike. It could be remarked that such high-handed tactics are without precedent in ordinary international usage. Suppose a revolution had driven Mr. Truman's government to Hawaii with a small army, and suppose Chiang had issued a declaration such as Mr. Truman issued. Would we call any action Mr. Truman took to prevent invasion troops from leaving San Francisco for Hawaii a "nose thumbing action"?

The most potent steps toward reinvolving this country in China's civil war have not been taken by Chiang in destroying 150 Communist junks loading troops to invade Formosa at Amoy. The most potent step was taken by the masters of the Kremlin when they engineered the attack on South Korea. We are now at war with the Reds as the head of a U. N. coalition. Unless we fully recognize that fact and cease quibbling over whether this or that action is "purely defensive" we shall soon suffer the consequences.

Statesmanship On Korea

The decision to use force against North Korean aggression was almost a reflex action produced by mounting tension and alarm at the constant accessions of Russian power and influence since World War II. It resulted not so much from a reasoned, considered decision as from exasperated impatience and a feeling that only force was an appropriate answer to Communist aggression. However, with time, it is becoming evident that the Korean affair involves serious unforeseen complications.

The military implications of our intervention are more far reaching than was at first apparent. From an order merely for air and naval units to aid South Korean resistance we have become more deeply involved until it is now evident that to bring the war to a conclusion it will be necessary for American ground forces to advance beyond the thirty-eighth parallel into North Korea.

Before the outbreak South Korea was considered so undesirable a position that American forces were withdrawn. In North Korea, stationed on an unfriendly population, confronted by Chinese Communist and Russian power to the west and north, American forces will find themselves in an uncomfortable and dangerous situation. The presence of American troops in North Korea will be a military drain and a liability—will weaken rather than strengthen our defenses, will bring American and Russian armies into explosive proximity, prompt Russian countermobilization and increase international tension.

The lack of devotion shown for the South Korean government has raised the question whether any government we are likely to sponsor will attract the support of the Koreans. The North Korean advance has added to the obstacles. The reforms that won it popular support in the north have now been initiated in the south. A situation has been created where to many Koreans the advance of American arms will represent abolition of land reforms, renewed partition of the country and domination by foreigners. The advance from our diminished beachhead will involve bombing and artillery on a scale that will devastate cities and public utilities of South as well as North Korea. What effect will such mass destruction of life and property have on American popularity in Korea and the East?

There is grave danger, even though we achieve complete military success, that we may find our position in the East weakened and Russia's strengthened as a result of the Korean war. Russia extends her influence in the Orient through promoting abolition of its predominantly feudalistic economic and social structure and by championing Asiatic nationalism as against Western imperialisms. Will our policy inadvertently furnish more fuel for her drive?

Will American intervention in Korea aid Russia's program by creating conditions which will tighten the Chinese-Russian alliance, align progressive and nationalistic Asiatics with Russia against us and remove the possibility of an Asiatic Titoism? Already we know the disadvantages of competition for areas where Russia has numerous friends to fight for her and we can find few natives friendly to us. The struggle for East Asia's hundreds of millions in the long run will depend less on tanks and bombs than on the allegiance of mind and heart.

We have stumbled into a difficult situation from which mere military measures cannot extricate us. Indeed military success alone may damage friendships, cement Russia's Far Eastern alliances, pin down large American forces in an expensive and dangerous position and increase international tension—making more difficult the containment of Russia or the prevention of World War III. The situation is one which demands not the talents and attitude of the militarist but of the statesman. It will require the application of intelligent moderation and diplomacy of a high order to bring the Korean intervention to a conclusion that is short of a disaster for the American and non-Communist world.

To no nation would mediation be of greater actual service than to the United States. America is strong enough for freedom of choice and action and not so weak that for the sake of prestige she must pursue a policy of a disadvantageous extreme. To escape serious damage our interest requires a nonmilitary settlement. A successful United Nations mediation would be as much of a victory for the United States as the situation affords. Every consideration of self-interest as well as humanity demands that we arrange for settlement through negotiation and mediation.

Elderly Bloc In Politics

By Malvina Lindsay

Fogyism or Wisdom?

THE ELDERLY may be getting pushed around in the business world, but they are getting more strongly entrenched at the ballot box every day. As the approaching Conference on Aging, sponsored by the Federal Security Agency, will point up, more than one American in nine will be past 65 by 1980. Fifty percent of voters will be past 45—and supposedly free from radicalism, or jellied down in fogyism, depending on how you look at it.

Those concerned with what an elderly political bloc could mean in this country might get some light on the subject by a good look at Congress.

Its record shows for one thing that the legend of the shining young Galahad, always leading the forces of progress, has been overdone. In the Senate where a man is "young" if still in his 40's, some of the most blatant examples of demagoguery have come from the "fresh young blood" of this and recent Congresses. The young obstructionist or rabble-rouser is likely to be especially dangerous because of his vigor and his knightly aura.

Yet both Senate and House have benefited from some of the new blood they have recently received—not all of it physiologically young, however. The mental arteries of the man, it seems, rather than his calendar age is what counts.

When the Eighty-first Congress convened a year ago last January there was comment on its youngish appearance. The House especially had many new men in their 30's and 40's, most of them college graduates, many veterans. It was hoped something new and different legislatively might result. Nothing has.

FOR THE political system with its entrenched patriarchs and coalitions was too much for any Galahad to overcome, certainly in one session. The older men from the safe rock-ribbed districts with their years of seniority behind them — and ahead—were running the show.

If some of these seem like political troglodytes, it should not be forgotten that the political scene is full of ideological contradictions concerning age. Vice President Barkley at 72 is no Colonel Blimp in mind. Nor is Senator Theodore Green, his senior. Senator Herbert Lehman, also 72, seemed a wild-eyed radical to many New Yorkers opposing his recent election. In California, 37-year-old Representative Richard Nixon, is cast as a prototype of the conservatives in his campaign against the crusading liberal, Helen Gahagan Douglas.

In West Virginia, the one-time baby Senator, Rush Holt, who became a rabid anti-New Dealer man, is running for a seat in the House as a Republican. In the Senate galleries young liberals point out Senator Paul Douglas, 58, as a voice of the future. And few in Congress have forgotten that Senator Arthur Vandenberg had the resiliency in his 50s to change his mind about international affairs.

Yet it is true that today's Congress shows the increase of years that have come to this legislative body in the 160 years of the Republic. Glancing through the sketches that Maj. William Pierce of Georgia wrote of the delegates to the Constitutional Convention of 1787, one finds: "Mr. Bedford is about 32 years old, and very corpulent . . . Mr. Gilman, in whom there is something respectable and worthy, about 30 . . . Mr. Bassett is about 35 . . . Mr. Martin 34 . . . Mr. Broom about 35, Mr. McHenry 32. . . ."

YET IN that convention there was also George Washington, 55; George Wythe, 65, who had taught Jefferson, Madison, John Marshall; Benjamin Franklin, 81, whose wisdom, diplomacy, wit did so much to save the convention from failure. Moreover this generally youthful convention was considered a conservative group of solid men, with most of the radicals, including Tom Paine and Patrick Henry, absent.

At that time the population was young. Life expectancy was around 36 years. Now it is 67. And while a mixture of age and youth is needed in public life there is now the growing danger that the representation may be too heavily on age's side; that a pressure bloc could be stirred up in support of fantastic schemes.

One answer to this is to lower the voting age, as has been done in Georgia — certainly without any upsurge of radicalism to date. Another step would be to change the seniority system in Congress to give new, and usually younger, members more voice. Still another would be an educational drive to push youth into active citizenship earlier.

Attack Warning

It seems to me that it is about time the citizens of the District of Columbia were informed as to what to do in case Washington were bombed and how to recognize the warning signal. Of course, none of us wish to think about such an occurrence, but it is imperative that we face reality for a change and prepare ourselves for the worst.

At present, if Washington were to be bombed and if city officials were to attempt to inform the citizens by ringing some sort of a siren, you can bet your bottom dollar that a large majority of people would run out of their homes to see what was going on instead of running for shelter.

Speculators' Heyday

By Marquis Childs

Why Your Food Goes Up

A GREAT many harsh words have been directed at the hoarders who rushed into the market place to grab up sugar, nylons and other things that might become scarce. Such swinishness produces a natural revulsion in most people who sense the danger to the country and the need for steady and reasonable conduct in the face of that danger.

Childs

But there is another kind of hoarder not nearly so evident as the greedy who cache away unnecessary supplies. The commodity speculator has been bidding up the prices of the things that all of us must eat and wear.

Operating almost entirely on credit, speculators since the start of the Korean war have been buying up "futures" of soybeans, lard, wheat and other commodities. The Commodity Exchange Authority in the Department of Agriculture reports:

"A speculator who purchased just before the Korean episode and deposited the minimum margin could have 'cashed in' five weeks later, on July 28, with an approximate 450 percent profit on lard, 300 percent on cottonseed oil, 300 percent on soybeans, 150 percent on cotton or wool tops, and a comparatively modest 100 percent on the relatively sluggish wheat futures."

A SMALL number of those who trade in commodities are in the market for a legitimate reason. They actually handle the wheat, cotton and lard in the channels of trade and they need, therefore, to protect their holdings in relation to price changes.

But up to 85 or 90 percent of the dealing in soybeans analyzed by the Exchange Authority for July 21 was pure speculation—betting that the market would go up as a result of the crisis.

The speculator puts up from 10 to 15 percent of the cost of the commodity he buys. The size of the down payment—the "margin requirement"—is fixed by the commodity exchanges. In return he gets a piece of paper showing he "owns" so much wheat or lard or cotton. Then when he thinks he has made sufficient profit, he sells something that he never saw or never had the trouble to store or handle in any way.

What is more, thanks to the present tax law, he lists the profit not as income but as capital gain. If he has held the commodity more than six months he pays the capital gains rate. On a profit of, say, $100,000 he would pay $25,000 instead of $75,000.

Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brannan wants Congress to raise the margin requirement to 50 percent. This, he argues, would work to keep out a lot of the gamblers who are driving up commodity prices. Inevitably, of course, the speculation in the price of "futures" forces up the price paid in cash by those who handle the commodities and finally the price paid by all of us for salad oil, cooking fat and so on.

IN HEARINGS before the Senate Banking and Currency Committee a parade of directors of commodity exchanges appeared to oppose giving the Federal Government power to regulate margin requirements. A provision for this had been included in the Administration bill on emergency powers to handle the Korean crisis. By a vote reported to have been 8 to 1 the committee knocked out the section on margin requirements.

Yet when the emergency powers bill is finally passed, it may contain some kind of curb intended to check the gambling in commidities. Committee Chairman Burnet Maybank spoke during the hearings of the need to "stop gamblers from taking advantage of the situation."

"I do not want to sit here and let 95 percent of the people be hurt because of 5 percent of the people," Senator Maybank said.

Five percent is high. The number of speculators would be much nearer a fraction of 1 percent. Yet they have contributed a lot to the fact that since the attack on Korea the price of lard has risen 41 percent, cottonseed oil, 31 percent, soybeans 25 percent, wheat 6 percent and eggs 5 percent.

Not so long ago a loud hue and cry was raised because members of President Truman's official family were discovered speculting in commodities. Supposedly they could have had advance information of governmental decisions that would have enabled them to buy and sell on the basis of a sure thing. That was in peacetime.

A decision was by this Government on June 27. It was a decision announced to the world to resist the brute force of Communist aggression. To use that decision with all that it means in blood, sweat and tears to bid up prices and make new and phenomenal profits is something less than patriotic.

Army Calls 62,000 Reservists Not on Organized Unit Rolls

the National Guard and Organized Reserve units being ordered up. However, key specialists will be used for duties "essential to the Army expansion."

It was learned that the Army expects to call an additional number of reservists later.

First calls will go to those between 19 and 25. Priority will be determined by the number of dependents. Those with no dependents will be called up first, then those with one dependent and lastly, those with more than one dependent.

32,000 By September 15

The Army plans to have 32,000 in camp by September 15, and the remaining 30,000 by mid-October.

The quota for the Second Army, which includes men from the District, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Ohio and Kentucky, is 6309 for mid-September and 6703 for mid-October.

The Army said members of organized units, of whom there are about 116,000 throughout the country, are not subject to the order announced yesterday.

They will be called only if their units are, rather than on an individual basis.

Most Are Veterans

Most of the enlisted reservists subject to the call are veterans of World War II.

The Army said that those men serving reserve enlistments for three to six years under the Selective Service Act of 1948 will be subject to call on the same basis as all other reserves. This group, part of the 185,000-man pool, includes men who served on active duty for less than three years after the war and then went into reserve status.

Under the new order, commanders of Organized Reserve and National Guard units alerted for active duty will determine what vacancies they have in each specialty by August 15. They will notify the Army area where they will train as to their needs.

Area officers will then survey each of their districts for eligible enlisted reservists in each required specialty. Quotas will be prorated by districts according to requirements.

Quotas set for each Army area are the maximum that may be called at the times specified, and it is possible that the total number of vacancies to be filled will not reach the quota figure, a Second Army spokesman explained. Only the number requested by unit commanders will be called.

May Ask New Quota

However, if and when the Second Army, for instance, reaches its maximum quota, it may request a new quota from the Army Department and start on a new group of calls.

The Second Army's total quota of 13,012 for September and October is the second highest in the Nation. The First Army, which includes New England, New York and New Jersey, may call up 9416 during the period, including 4000 in September.

Reservists will first receive physical examinations. They will return to their homes and will be ordered to active duty from there if they have passed their physicals. They will have 21 days from the date of receipt of their orders to settle personal affairs, before reporting to training divisions or reception centers.

An Army spokesman said those called would be screened to weed out any Communist sympathizers.

Announcement that the 430th Engineer Construction Battalion here has been ordered up came from Lieut. Col. Oliver E. Deming, jr., the unit's commander.

Battalion officers will interview volunteers who have experience in construction trades, between 8 a. m. and 5 p. m. daily, except Sunday, until August 17, at the Engineer Armory.

Colonel Deming lives at 2811 S. Abingdon st., Arlington.

Individuals Called

District units previously called up have included three from the National Guard and an Organized Reserve Marine battalion. A number of Naval Reservists, both organized and inactive, also have been ordered to active duty, on an individual basis.

In the meantime, the Navy yesterday ordered all regular and reserve enlisted personnel frozen for one year after their current enlistments expire. Exempt from the order, authorized by the President, are men who enlisted for one year under the draft program.

Locally, the Army-Air Force recruiting station enlisted 27 of 46 who applied and accepted 19 for later processing. Also processed were 62 District men sent by Selective Service Boards 11 and 15 for preinduction examinations. Four others failed to report.

Six were enlisted by the Navy yesterday of 11 who applied, four others being accepted for later processing. Three local physicians were interviewed for possible active duty.

At the Marine recruiting station, three recruits were accepted and three enlisted. Two others with prior service and with dependents were also accepted.

Indications that the Air Force is now recalling reserve officers and airmen on an involuntary basis came yesterday from Roanoke, Va. Lieut. Russell C. Sherry, commander of the Air Reserve Liaison Station there, said selections will be made to fill specific quotas in areas under the First Air Force, headquarters of which are at Mitchell Air Force Base, New York.

Rhee's Aid Plea Rejected

mittee of the Senate Armed Services Committee held a two-hour meeting with Defense Secretary Louis A. Johnson. Chairman Lyndon Johnson (D., Texas.) told reporters after the closed session that his subcommittee, generally regarded as the successor to the World War II Truman Committee, discussed with the Cabinet officer among other things the "present and potential needs in terms of men, materials and money." He would not elaborate.

Johnson said the Defense Secretary promised the "utmost cooperation" with the subcommittee and had developed a plan of "cooperative liaison" with it. He said Assistant Secretary of Defense Marx Leva, who sat at his elbow while he talked, had been designated to represent the department in its contacts with the subcommittee.

Another meeting of the subcommittee, Johnson said, would be called the middle of next week, at which he expected the Secretaries of the Army, the Navy and the Air Force would testify. That meeting, he added, also would be closed.

Hayden Reports 'Post Mortem'

After the morning session of the full committee, Senator Hayden (D., Ariz.) described General Robert's testimony as "just a post mortem." Roberts had made substantially the same statements at a news conference in California earlier.

Other Senators said Roberts testified that numerous South Korean requests for tanks, aircraft and artillery had been turned down because of the fear of aggression against North Korea. He added that some time ago all civilians had been evacuated from Communist territory in a 10-mile strip north of the 38th parallel. Senators said he added that he had no intelligence officer among the 300 officers and 200 men assigned to the mission he headed.

Knowland said the substance of his conversations with Rhee, which occurred during an official inspection of Pacific bases, was preserved in a memorandum he made at the time. He took some papers from his pocket and read:

"Have army of 100,000 but did need arms. If Chinese war terminates it is belief that several well-armed divisions of Communist troops will be sent into North Korea. Rhee does not think the Soviet government will risk an aggressive war until Far Eastern flank is secure."

He explained that the last sentence referred to the fact that last November, when the notes were made, the Communist victory in China was not complete.

The committee is considering President Truman's request for an additional 10½ billion dollars for the armed forces.

Profits Tax Again Urged

the committee table, O'Mahoney went on:

"If you have any doubts, then glance at this second picture. Here is a Marine with a baby in his arms, kissing his wife goodby. And here is a third of dry-eyed war wives. There's suffering etched on their faces."

O'Mahoney pulled out all the emotional stops legislators will face in the coming campaign.

"There isn't a member of this committee who doesn't remember the famous photograph taken in Paris when the Germans took over," he continued. "It showed a French civilian in deep emotion as the Tricolor passed by for the last time.

"This picture (of the war wives) is just as moving."

The picture exhibit was only an incident in his testimony. He cited statistics on the rise of corporate profits to an all-time high and predicted the Korean war will send both prices and profits far higher unless the tax is imposed.

'Working for Uncle Sam'

He said the tax will make certain "the profiteer and the speculator will be working for Uncle Sam . . . to support the soldiers on the fighting front and to protect the system of private property at home."

"Let's take these profits now," he said. "To take them next year will be too late because every dollar of these billions of profits which do not go to war now will be added to the inflationary pressures and thereby hinder the war effort."

O'Mahoney said his own excise profits tax plan would impose no hardships on any corporation. It provides for a $25,000 specific exemption and other credits to ease the impact on small business.

He selected as a base 75 percent of the average rate of corporate profits for the three years 1947 through 1949. That average is $30,700,000,000. O'Mahoney's tax would apply only on the top 25 percent of the profits earned above that average.

The tax would range from 65 percent on the first 10 percent of these "excess" earnings to 100 percent on net income above 125 percent of the base.

Connally 'Impressed'

In announcing he will offer an excess profits tax amendment in the committee, Senator Connally did not say whether it will be the O'Mahoney plan. But he said he was "impressed" by O'Mahoney's 90-minute testimony.

Connally, who opposed immediate repeal of the World War II profits levy at the end of hostilities, told reporters:

"We've got to come to it, and we ought to do it now."

President Truman and Treasury Secretary Snyder have said they do not want an excess profits tax imposed immediately.

The Finance Committee spent the rest of the afternoon considering "loophole-plugging" provisions of the House bill. Mr. Truman recommended that 500 million of the five-billion-dollar tax increase he asked be raised in this manner. Of the balance, 2.9 billion dollars would be raised from increased individual income taxes and 1.5 billion from raising corporation rates.

Before recessing, the committee picked up nearly 150 million dollars from loophole revisions, but turned thumbs down on some House revisions that would have raised about 175 million dollars more.

The committee modified a House formula for taxing life insurance companies retroactivelly to 1949 to raise 110 million dollars in new revenue. The House plan, retroactive to 1947, would have raised 156 million dollars.

The committee closed the so-called "collapsible corporation" loophole to raise three million dollars more. The "collapsible" device, objected to by the President, is widely used in the movie industry, when a corporation is set up for the purpose of making single pictures. The committee voted to tax such corporations on a basis of "income" rather than "capital gains."

Rejects House Proposal

The committee rejected a House proposal to cut the interest on tax refunds from 6 to 3 percent, which would have saved the Treasury about 45 million dollars a year.

But it picked up 31 million dollars by taxing income of Government employes in United States possessions, such as the Canal Zone. The Senate group voted to make the tax applicable in 1951, instead of applying it at once as the House did on 1950 income.

Senate Votes Spending Bill

man for military outlays in connection with the Korean war.

In addition to the regular military funds, the bill carried $4,590,000,000 in cash and spending authority for all foreign aid, including $2,726,000,000 for the European recovery program.

The proposed Marshall Plan cut would have amounted to $136,338,073.

It was the second time in two days, however, that the foreign economic aid fund had survived a proposed reduction. The Senate Thursday voted to exempt the Marshall Plan from a 10 percent reduction which was applied to most other nonmilitary expenditures.

Despite Thursday's economy amendment, the bill still contained more than $34,200,000,000. It provid money to run scores of Government bureaus and departments during the fiscal year that started July 1. Interest on the public debt and certain other recurring, nondeferrable operating costs are excluded from the one-package bill.

Senator McClellan (D., Ark.) sponsored the unsuccessful attempt to reduce the Marshall Plan allowance by 5 percent. He said that in times like these, countries which have been receiving American economic assistance should be willing to make the same sacrifices as the people of the United States.

Opposing the cut, Chairman Tydings (D., Md.) of the Armed Services Committee declared:

"No military machine is any stronger than the economic machine that supports it. If you cut this appropriation you will have to add it to military funds and you will meet yourself coming back."

Democratic Leader Lucas of Illinois declared that Senators who always had opposed the Marshall Plan were heading the effort to reduce the appropriation.

U.S. Religious Life Aired for Germans

Three Barvarian farmers pointed unbelievably at the church edifices on almost every block of Washington's 16t1h st, recently.

They turned puzzled eyes on Dr. Harry A. Wann, of the American Council on Education, their guide, explaining that they had been told there were no religious institutions in America.

To counteract just such indoctrination, about life in the United States, the Commission on Occupied areas of the State Department in cooperation with community, educational and religious organizations all over the country is now playing host to some 1500 men and women from Germany.

At the Young Women's Christian Association, 17th and K sts. nw., each week for the past five months, groups of about 50 Germans are first given an overall picture of "life in America."

Educational, political, agricultural, economic, religious and other phases are packaged in understandable terms.

This "Introduction to the United States," a precis of 3 to 6-month study of social agencies, youth groups, labor unions, seminaries or other units that suit the specific experiences of each German, is headed by Dr. Wann.

Orientation classes on the place of religion in America are voluntarily staffed by three representatives of the major faiths—the Rev. Dr. Frederick Reissig, executive secretary of the Federation of Churchs in America, Protestant; the Rev. William E. McManus, assistant director, Department of Education of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, Catholic; and Isaac Franck, Executive Director, Jewish Community Council of Greater Washington, Hebrew. The idea is not to give a theological study, but only to emphasize the part religion plays in the pattern of American society.

The Rev. Dr. Charles Enders, pastor of Concordia Evangelical and Reform Church, and executive member of the Washington Federation of Churches took over for Dr. Reissig last Thursday.

Speaking in German, he sketched American Protestantism as a diversified group. He explained that there were 256 Protestant groups in America and less than one-half have more than 10,000 members, but that 80 percent of the church members were to be found in eight large denominations. He showed how groups of Protestants work together in the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, the World Council of Churches and local Federation of Churches, with an active interest in housing, hospital, welfare and other problems.

With a simultaneous interpreter rapidly translating into German for about half the group, Franck described the Jewish religious idea in America and the many social service and charitable institutions supported by them.

"There is no single central religious authority in Judaism. We have a great deal of variety of religious practice and any ten Jews can get together and organize a synagogue and often do," he said. However, he continued, there are three major denominations — Orthodox, Conservative and Reform Jews. As of June 1949, there were 392 reform congregations, 365 conservative and about 500 orthodox.

Stressing that religous leaders do take stands on political issues they consider immoral or inconsistent with their beliefs, politics, he cited the severe criticism that an Orthodox Convention of Rabbis had given of the American governments' decision to manufacture hydrogen bombs.

Father McManus told the visitors that one cannot "possibly understand the United States unless you know something about its religion."

"Here in the United States," he said, the Catholic Church is interested not only in making people pleasing to Almighty God, through prayer and sacraments, but also through the application of religious principles in labor relations, housing, agriculture, racial justice as well."

He emphasized the concern of the church over a favorable family life, the menace of divorce, the desirability of bona fide free trade unions.

"It is the job of the church to preach like St. Paul, in season and out of season against any kind of racial or religious injustice. It is fundamentally wrong and sinful to show discrimination."

"What amazes the visitors from Germany," one of the speakers mentioned later, "is that religion in America is such a down-to-earth affair."

Baptists Told Virginia Offers a 'Challenge'

Massanetta Springs, Va., Aug. 4 (AP).—The Baptist Assembly was told today that "Virginia, the birthplace of religious liberty and individual freedom, challenges the Baptist people as never before."

The speaker was James R. Bryant, executive secretary of the Virginia Baptist Board of Missions and Education.

Bryant stressed the need for increased loyalty on the part of the minister and layman to the missionary projects of Virginia Baptists.

"Liberty, justice and righteousness cannot be carried by our missionaries to pagan lands if we allow the paganism of materialism and communism to conquer the home bases of religious liberty," Bryant declared.

Another speaker, Dr. R. C. McDanel, president of the Virginia Baptist General Association and professor at the University of Richmond, said Virginia Baptists are not adequately supporting their educational institutions.

The Assembly will continue through Sunday evening.

For Peace

Archbishop Asks Novena Of Prayers

In a pastoral letter to be read in all Roman Catholic churches of the Washington Archdiocese on Sunday, the Most. Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington, requests a special novena of prayer for world peace.

"Responding to the command of our beloved Holy Father," the letter states, "I request that in every church of the Archdiocese, a special novena of prayer and good works shall be conducted beginning August 7 and ending on the feast of Our Lady's Assumption, August 15. The novena services shall include the Rosary, Litany of the Blessed Virgin, a brief instruction and Benediction. I urge every person to visit the Blessed Sacrament daily and to say the Rosary daily until peace, please God, is with us once again."

The letter to the 175,000 Catholics under Archbishop O'Boyle's spiritual jurisdiction concludes:

"Our young men and women are now called upon to make great sacrifices so that Christianity may prevail; shall we, in this hour of universal need, fail to get down on our knees and by prayer and penance implore God to bless them and the world with peace?"

Chapel Plans Cruise

600,000 Tons Of Cuba Sugar Bought by U. S.

The United States yesterday concluded the purchase of 600,000 short tons of surplus Cuban sugar to help assure the Nation of ample supplies.

The price was set at 5.38 cents a pound, raw value, on delivery at Cuban ports. This is at about current market levels.

The Department of Agriculture announced that it was arranging to buy the Cuban surplus as well as surplus supplies in Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and Hawaii, totaling an additional 350,000 tons.

The department's statement said Cuba has been "assured of the availability of United States Government stocks of wheat, rice, eggs, milk, butter and other commodities held in Commodity Credit Corporation inventories to meet her needs.

Secretary of Agriculture Brannan said the sugar deal offers "another example of the splendid cooperation that has always existed between the United States and Cuba."

In Cuba, war-scarce buying of sugar is keeping a boom going there.

The republic has been in lush days since World War II ended. It is the world's greatest sugar producer and now has a market for every ounce it produced this year—5,393,541 Spanish long tons of 2271 pounds each.

The fighting in Korea changed the sugar situation—and Cuba's economic outlook—almost overnight. Early in June, it appeared Cuba would have a 1950 surplus of 1,200,000 tons. That would have put a serious crimp in Cuba's economy.

The Korean situation, however, caused a sudden demand for sugar and Cuba remains in clover.

The 1950 crop, with its by-products, was worth about 600 million dollars.

By the United Press

Wholesale prices rose an average of nine-tenths of one percent in the week ended Tuesday—to a point 3.8 percent above a month ago and 7.9 percent higher than the same week last year, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported yesterday.

The bureau's price index was 165.1 percent of the 1926 average.

Textile prices showed the biggest rise with a four percent boost. Food prices generally were up eight-tenths of one percent although meat prices dropped six-tenths of one percent as a result of continued buyer resistance.

Wool, rubber and sugar made sharp advances in futures trading in commodity market yesterday, while grain prices sagged. Rubber futures rose the daily limit of two cents a pound as Singapore and London quotations continued to climb. Wool futures jumped two cents a pound and wool tops two to three cents a pound.

Soybeans with a decline of 10 cents a bushel led the retreat in grain uftures at Chicago, and rye was close behind with declines of grain futures at Chicago, and rye down 3¼ to 3⅞, corn to 4⅝ and oats 1½ to 2.

The Western office of the American Meat Institute forecast yesterday that meat will be more plentiful and cheaper during the next three months.

The institute said most of the panicky buying following the Korean war outbreak has subsided and prices are dropping.

Two tire companies have announced price rises. Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. increased prices on passenger, truck and farm tires and on tubes made of natural rubber. Effective yesterday the company raised the retail price on all passenger tires 5 percent, on all truck tires 7½ percent, and on all farm tires 5 percent.

Lee Rubber & Tire Corp., has announced an increase of 7½ percent on the price of its truck and bus tires and a hike of 5 percent on passenger car and tractor tires.

Standby Curbs Gain on Hill

Monday to consider the language drafted in the meantime.

On the other side of the Capitol, the House continued until mid-afternoon to operate in the confusion that has plagued its consideration of economic controls for several days.

It began with a Democratic decision to support a bill it had tentatively approved the previous evening. This was a badly twisted caricature of the control legislation originally asked for by the President, plus an ambiguous semi-permissive, semi-automatic, price and wage control section.

But when the Democrats sought to clinch approval, their bill was voted down by a Republican-Southern Democratic coalition, 172 to 161.

Back where they started, members once again began the weary, if noisy, process of trying to amend the basic Administration measure, which has no price-fixing section.

The Republicans sought to add the one they favored, a scheme offered by Representative Kunkel (R., Pa.). GOP leaders insisted it was not a mandatory bill; Democrats said it was, and that furthermore, it was loaded with at least 29 "bugs" or booby-traps to make its execution chaotic.

The amendment was defeated, 165 to 130.

Similarly, another amendment providing what purported to be only standby authority to set wage and price ceilings, offered by Representative Deane (D., N. C.), was beaten, 151 to 140. Both decisions were by teller votes, in which the name of the voter is not recorded.

At this point, the House gave up consideration of the economic controls bill until next week—on Tuesday or even later.

Still to be offered when consideration is resumed are several more amendments, providing for price and wage control to function in a more or less mandatory and automatic way. From the Administration point of view, they constitute serious threats.

Therefore, it was learned that the Democratic strategy is to seek agreement, in the House Banking and Currency Committee, on an amendment giving the President the purely permissive price-wage authority he will accept, without any embarrassing or uneconomic gimmicks.

Rep Representative Spence (D., Ky.), chairman of the committee, is expected to convene the membership on Monday to work out an agreement. The hope is that both parties are so tired of trying to write a bill on the floor of the House, as they have been for two days, that they will settle on something in committee, where a bill can be reasonably drafted.

Before the House temporarily adjourned its consideration of the economic control bill, it adopted one significant amendment.

It was an antihoarding provision, making it illegal for businessmen or householders to accumulate excessive stores, above "reasonable" needs, of foods, fuel, wearing apparel, tools, equipment, tires and other "necessities."

Similar to a law in effect during the First World War, it provides stiff penalties for violators.

Farm Income Dips 7 Pct. From '49 Level

Farmers took in $12,900,000,000 during the first 7 months of 1950—a drop of 7 percent from the same period in 1949—the Agriculture Department said yesterday.

In July, however, prices received by farmers rose slightly for the first time this year.

Due to the Korean war and other developments it is expected in some quarters this increase will continue. The Department, however, made no prediction.

Farmers' cash receipts from marketing dropped sharply in 1949 compared with the banner year of 1948. This decline has continued through this year.

Recent increased prices to consumers, however, are expected to result eventually in increased returns to the farmer.

Secretary of Agriculture Brannan said at a recent congressional hearing the farmer to date has not profited from higher prices the housewife is paying. He added, however, that if the prices stay up the farmer eventually will get an increased return.

Although the department has estimated the farm income for the Nation for the first seven months, it has the actual totals by States for only the first five months.

This shows Iowa far out in front in cash receipts, from farm marketings from January through May, of $801,856,000. This is a sharp decline from the $860,078,000 received in the same period in 1949.

Illinois was second with $638,642,000 compared with the $639,837,000 received last year.

Texas, third with $606,861,000, registered a big jump from last year's five-month total of $510,136,000.

6 States to Gain, 8 to Lose Seats In Congress

Tentative 1950 population figures indicate six States will gain seats in the House of Representatives, while eight will lose.

Although the final population figures the Census Bureau will furnish to President Truman in December may change things slightly, the outlook is that:

Seat gains will be: Seven for California, two for Florida and one each for Maryland, Michigan, Texas and Washington.

Losses will be: Three for Pennsylvania, two each for New York, Oklahoma and Missouri—President Truman's home State; and one each for Arkansas, Illinois, Kentucky and Mississippi.

No more precise determinations are possible now because the preliminary State population figures will be changed by the allocation of some 700,000 persons enumerated away from their homes, chiefly members of ships' crews.

The seat changes are to take effect beginning with the Eighty-third Congress, which will take office in January, 1953.

Reece Holds 1784 Lead In Tennessee

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 4 (AP).—Carroll Reece, former Republican national chairman, apparently has cleared the major hurdle in his bid to return to Congress.

On the basis of nearly complete unofficial returns from yesterday's primary, he won the GOP nomination for Congress in East Tennessee's traditionally Republican First District.

Unofficial returns from all but 26 precincts showed Reece held 29,763 votes to 27,979 for Representative Dayton Phillips.

Reece represented the First District for 24 years befoce becoming party chairman in 1946. Phillips succeeded him in Congress.

In the Second District, also strongly Republican, Representative John Jennings was defeated by a 2-to-1 margin in the Republican primary by Howard H. Baker, who was backed by Reece forces.

In the Democratic primary Gov. Gordon Browning, who made a comeback for Governor in 1948 over the opposition of political leader E. H. Crump of Memphis, won renomination, equivalent to reelection in Tennessee.

Browning's principal opponent, State Senator Clifford Allen, polled an unexpectedly heavy vote. However, returns from 2116 of 2300 precincts gave Browning 240,212 votes to 188,369 for Allen.

All eight Democratic Congressmen overcame opposition in the balloting.

In the toughest race Representative Jere Cooper of the Ninth District polled 25,437 votes to 23,932 for Robert A. (Fats) Everett in returns from all but five precincts.

Vote Recount Ordered In Oklahoma Primary

Oklahoma City, Aug. 4 (AP).—A recount of all votes cast in the July 25 Democratic Governor's runoff election was ordered today by the State Supreme Court.

The decision was a victory for William O. Coe, who lost to Johnston Murray by 1009 votes.

Last Saturday Coe demanded a recount in each of the State's 77 counties and put up $250 a county as required by law. Murray, son of former Governor William H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray, asked for a recount in 21 counties.

Monday the State Election Board denied a recount. Coe appealed to the Supreme Court.

In the first primary July 4, Murray led Coe—second man in a field of four—by 88,000 votes, almost enough to win without a runoff.

1st Division Marines Play Host To New Zealand Host of 1942

By S. L. Fishbein
Post Reporter

To wear those blue and yellow buttons they were passing out on the Statler Hotel mezzanine yesterday, you had to be somebody.

You had to be a member of the First Marine Division Association. Which meant, most likely, that you survived Guadacanal or Cape Gloucester or Peleliu or Okinawa. Or a combination of them.

Yet, Col. G. E. Matheny, who certainly knew all this, wanted two extra buttons. The registration clerk hesitated. "They're good friends of the Marines," he coaxed.

Finally, the colonel got the buttons, walked to one of the temporary bars and pinned them on a man and his wife. It was very fitting that it happened at the bar.

The proud recipients were Harold Fownes and his wife, Joe, residents of Wellington, New Zealand. They never made a beachhead and they earned the buttons before the First Division ever took the offensive.

It was in July, 1942, Guadalcanal would come a month later. Colonel Matheny was then a major with the First Marine Division. He's with the Second at Camp Lejeune, N. C., now.

"It was the day we landed at Wellington," Colonel Matheny recalled. "We worked all day unloading the ship. At night we wanted a drink."

"About 20 of us went off in the rain, in that brownout they had down there. We stumbled into the Midland Hotel, but they wouldn't sell us anything because we weren't guests there."

With true Leatherneck ingenuity, the major looked around, spotted a party that was apparently qualified to order the stuff and asked for some help. The man he asked was Harold Fownes.

"He made two or three trips on rationed gas in his little put-put and took us all to his house for a party," Matheny said.

The Matheny group was only the first. To others at the reunion Fownes is known as "The Host of the First Marine Division."

It was sheer coincidence that Fownes, a companye director in Wellington, met up with his wartime guests. He and Mrs. Fownes had been on a visit to New York and were passing through Washington on their way home, when he heard about the convention.

Afterward, during a parade at the Marine Barracks, the Marines took official cognizance of another Britisher's exploits in the South Pacific.

They pinned the Legion of Merit on Lieut. Col. John V. Mather of the Australian army, the chief scout of the Second Marine Raider Battalion on Guadalcanal.

Mathew, who once owned a plantation in the Solomons, flew here from London to receive the medal.

At 10 a. m. today members of the association will parade along Constitution ave. from 4th st. nw. to the Ellipse.

4000 See Preview Of Sesqui Drama

By Sonia Stein
Post Reporter

"Faith of Our Fathers," the historical drama which had a preview presentation last night in the new amphitheater in Rock Creek Park, was conceived with a good eye but a poor ear.

In every particular, from the beauty of the natural setting in which the roofless theater is built, to the last flick of an actor's wrist, the production is a joy to behold. It is, however, except for the music, difficult listening.

It is fortunate, then, that the production—more a pageant than a play—carries its message so well without words. Last night's audience of 4000 especially invited officials including the President and his wife and daughter, newsmen from New York's theatrical beats, diplomats and members of the Sesquicentennial Commission since this is a Sesquicentennial project, caught the idea of the occasion right from the beginning. They were not there to watch acting, but to watch history in tableau, so they responded to the arrival on stage of George Washington and Thomas Jefferson with a round of applause, although neither actor is star enough to have warranted it on his own name.

Makes Lines Elementary

Paul Green, author of "The Common Glory" which is played yearly at Williamsburg, Va., and "The Lost Colony" which is now in its tenth year at Roanoke Island, N. C., is an old hand at this kind of work. Knowing the nature of outdoor theater, he makes his lines elementary. In fact, both the lines and the reading of them is elementary to a surprising degree.

The economic factors of this kind of production, involving masses of people in what is essentially not a commercial venture, prevent the hiring of more than a handful of professional actors—and it would seem, of almost any really good actors.

There was actually one actor on stage last night. He was John Tate, who played George Washington's valet, Billy Lee. His assignment was comedy relief: he also was about the only relief from an otherwise wooden cast.

Charles McClelland, another experienced professional, has the physical stature and the voice for Washington, but not the acting stature. Like the others, he indulged in an exercise in declamation. Much of the acting sounded as if it were inspired by heavy black lines under special words in the script.

Impressive and Beautiful

But as a production in toto, "Faith of Our Fathers" was impressive and beautiful. The chorus, carefully trained under Richard Dirksen, made an exquisite wall of sound—quite equal to the majesty of God's country in which the stage nestles between two arcs of stone. The ballet, under Barbara Cole, is lovely and it says something. The lighting, the work of James Waring, is handsome, subtle and a definitely recognizable contribution to the production. The costumes, all satin and lace and powdered wigs, the properties, the little token gestures of sets are all worndefully appropriate to the work.

The cyclorama of course, is a wall of tall and lushly-leafed trees. The side walls of the theater, the same with pale, slim birches marking pattern in the green. The sky, dark with fingers of light crossing it from floodlights, is overhead and the seats, happily, are curved to fit the human anatomy. The stage is wide and deep, and has two side extensions for playing other small scenes while the center stage is being reset.

Smooth Handling

The production staff, which includes Wilson Vorenberg as director and L. Poe Leggette as production executive, must have been extremely pleased with the smoothnessness of last night's production. Not a hitch to mar the show—the properties and the many sets which must be heavy on that large stage even though they are mere impressions—were moved quietly and efficiently. Some of the actors managed well enough. The two commentators, Davie Rogers and Emery Smith, seemed to have a better appreciation of how much tender care a word can stand, than do the actors. Eventually some of the actors may pick it up from them Since the cast is primarily a student cast, that being the usual method employed by Mr. Green who considers his ventures educational for the company as well as historical for the audience, it's useless to labor the point of their mediocrity.

As the production began last night, the sky was still slate blue and just one star was out. Probably everybody in the company wished on it, wished that the show would be a success—and the wish came true. The show was a success for what it was. It simply wasn't a play.

As the Watergate, Washington's other outdoor theater, is beset by the roar of planes, this wonderful amphitheater is beset by a chorus of crickets who chirp happily—and not particularly harmfully. When the audience misses lines it is not the fault of crickets, accoustics or amplifying system—just the actors diction.

"Faith of Our Fathers" will have its first public showing tonight at 8:30 in the huge amphitheater in Rock Creek Park, on Colorado ave., just off 16th st. nw. A "Massing of the Colors" ceremony with more than 200 color guards and standards will precede the performance. Tickets for this and succeeding performances are being sold at the trailer in front of the District Building, the Stabler Ticket Mart in Brentano's at 1323 F st. nw. and the Super Music City stores at 1350 F st. and 1110 7th st. nw. Performances will be nightly except Monday through September 30.

Arson Charged In Alexandria Shop Blaze

An Alexandria upholsterer was charged with arson yesterday. Police said he admitted setting fire to his shop in the hope he would collect insurance.

Inspector Russell A. Hawes, chief of the Alexandria detective bureau, identified him as James T. McGalliard, 35, of 223 Wesmond dr. He operates an upholstery shop at 123 W. Glebe rd., Alexandria. He was released in $2500 bond pending a hearing in Alexandria Police Court.

Hawes said the confession came after an exhaustive investigation by Detective Sergt. Russell Greenwalt and Detective William G. Tothill. The officers were assigned to probe a blaze that gutted McGalliard's place of business July 12. In his confession, Hawes said, McGalliard related how he poured five gallons of highly inflammable lacquer on furnishings in the shop and then set it afire.

He quoted McGalliard as saying he hoped to collect the insurance because he was "financially embarrassed." However, according to the detective staff, the insurance company covering McGalliard's property withheld payment land had $7,400,000 left over at 000 for this year's general fund

Alexandria detectives were assisted in the probe by Virginia Deputy Fire Marshal L. R. Travers, of Richmond.

102 Signers for Home Rule

Congressional signatures on the District home rule petition yesterday reached number 201 of the necessary 218, home rule supporters announced, though some duplications are included.

Latest to sign were Representatives Sadlak (R., Conn.), and Walter (D., Pa.). Both said they thought the bill should be brought to the floor for a vote and it has become apparent the House District Committee will not permit that.

Salesman Held On Impersonation, Forgery Charges

A 45-year-old salesman was held for grand jury action in Marlboro Police Court yesterday on two charges of impersonating a police officer and five counts involving bad checks.

The defendant, Otto H. Gage of 5718 26th pl., Silver Hill, waived preliminary hearing on all charges. He was ordered held under a total of $4400 bond.

No testimony was presented by the State, but police earlier said that Gage posed as a policeman, stopped motorists, pretended to write tickets and then accepted bribes.

The check charges, involving about $175, included three of forgery and two of false pretense.

Drunk Charge Dropped On Basis of 'Treatment'

Chester P. Grimes, alias George Grimes, 55, was acquitted of a drunk charge yesterday in Municipal Court after he testified he believed his condition was due to an "injection" he received at the District's Alcohol Clinic.

Grimes was arrested Thursday while he was directing traffic at a Southeast Washington intersection, police said.

A clinic doctor said later that they give no injections other than vitamin B, but barbiturates are given in pill form. Judge Frank H. Myers said that the treatment raised a "reasonable doubt" in his mind and he acquitted Grimes.

Errol Flynn Wins Beauty . . .

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

'SHE SAID YES'—Twice-married, 41-year-old Errol Flynn, the swashbucking star of movie and real life romances will marry Patrice Wymore, 21, his newest leading woman. They're shown together in a scene from the picture they've just finished making in Hollywood. Patrice is a statuesque redhead, a former Broadway dancer and an heiress to a Kansas wheat and oil fortune. In announcing the wedding will take place in three months, Flynn exulted: "It took a lot of persuasion. She said yes a couple of days ago"

Figures Challenged

Trade School Fight Here Is Renewed

The dispute over GI trade schools broke out anew yesterday with the District Apprenticeship Council challenging job placement figures given District Commissioners recently by a public school official.

Assistant School Superintendent Garnet C. Wilkinson told the Commissioners last month that many graduates, 100 percent in the case of one school, are working in the fields for which they trained.

The council, which set off an investigation of the private school last summer by reporting charges of veteran exploitation, wrote the Commissioners yesterday that its survey showed Wilkinson was wrong.

A rechecking of employer groups showed that less than one in 20 graduates of nearly 30 schools here find work at the trade for which they trained, the council stated.

The letter called on Wilkinson to prove his high employment figures by listing names of graduates and their employers. It also asked why these names had not been furnished the committee investigating the schools.

Until Wilkinson submits names, the letter said, his figures "can be assumed to have no basis in fact." The letter was signed by John R. Evans, acting chairman of the council; Robert E. Phelps, chairman of its executive committee; and Gino J. Simi, Council secretary.

The Commissioners last summer ordered an investigation of charges that the trade schools were giving inadequate training and turning out many more graduates than there were jobs available.

A report signed by a minority of the committee, cleared the schools of exploitation charges.

However, labor and council representatives on the committee disagreed with the findings and contended that no real investigation had been made. Evans, Phelps and Simi all served on the committee.

3 Trainmen Die In Runaway Of Locomotive

Cheyenne, Wyo., Aug. 4 (AP).—An unmanned locomotive careened eight miles downhill and smashed into a Diesel switch-engine last night, killing three trainmen. A fourth trainman was uninjured.

Observers estimated the runaway locomotive was moving at a speed of 40 to 45 miles an hour when it rammed the Diesel.

The smashup occurred on an overpass, 15 feet above street level in the west end of Cheyenne.

The dead, all from Cheyenne and all crew members aboard the switch-engine, were: Albert Chambers, engineer; Thomas E. Harris, fireman, and G. R. Crago, switchman. The injured man is S. C. Statz, a switchman.

U. S. Officials To View Film At Playhouse

Laurence Olivier's "Henry V" will have its last showing at the Playhouse, Tuesday at 4:25 p. m. The theater will be closed after that until 8:30 p. m. when an audience headed by diplomats, cabinet members, and officials of the national and local governments will arrive for the Washington premiere of "Panic in the Streets" which is being held at the playhouse in honor of the United States Public Health Service of the Federal Security Agency. The United States Air Force Band will play.

Oscar R. Ewing, Federal Security Administrator, and the surgeon general of the United States Public Health Service, Dr. Leonard B. Scheele, will address the audience.

"Panic in the Streets" tells the exciting story of an incipient epidemic in a port city of the United States, with Richard Widmark as the health officer who combats the spread of the epidemic. Paul Douglas and Barbara Bel Geddes are also starred in the film which was directed by Elia Kazan.

"Panic in the Streets" opens its regular run at the Playhouse at 9:30 a. m. Wednesday.

Gunmen Grab $25,471 On Busy Street, Escape

Kingsport, Tenn., Aug. 4 (U.P.).—Two gunmen staged a $25,471 robbery in daylight on a busy downtown street today and fled in a black sedan.

James F. Asbury, credit manager, and Guy H. Culbertson, secretary of the Dobyns-Taylor Hardware Co., were en route from a bank with the money when the bandits stepped out of a theater entrance. They seized a handbag containing the money and jumped into an empty 1941 sedan idling at the curb and raced away.

Little Theater Offers Opera Lovers Two Big Treats

By Paul Hume
Post Reporter

Little's opera festival opened yesterday with a combination we have never heard in an opera house.

But that's probably just because it would take so long to run through all of Donizetti's Lucia di Lammermoor, and most of Verdi's Traviata at one sitting.

Also, as opera houses in this country go, it would cost too much to mount the two at one time.

Anyhoo—if you go to the Little in the next day or so, you will see and hear all of Lucia. The Italian version of Sir Walter Scott's story of the Bride of Lammermoor has one singing star well known in this country: Italo Tajo, the bass who is taking over some of Ezio Pinza's work around our opera houses.

Richard L. Coe is on vacation. His column will be resumed on his return.

Lucia is sung by Nelly Corradi. The entire opera is given, the camera takes you into places you never see on the opera stage. For instance, the opera ends with Edgar running to kill himself by Lucia's bed, instead of stabbing himself "by the tomb of the Ravenswood's where the libretto dispatches him. What's more, Eddy sings all the time he's running through the woods.

The film is a little fuzzy in spots, and the sound track varies in quality and volume. However, if you like Lucia, and thousands still seem to, here's your chance to hear it again. The "sextet" comes off with intensified dramatic impact because of your nearness to the actors. The Mad Scene seems a little protracted, but if Miss Corradi were a better coloratura, it would not be unduly long. Incidentally, you will hear some scenes generally cut in our opera houses.

Finally, you will have, before your eyes, the text as it is sung—which means that you will know all that the singers are singing. That's a great help. And the translation is pretty good. Once in a while they slip you something like, "Oh, what perfidy! Let her punishment be condign!"

The "Amami Alfredo" which doubles with Lucia, is far better and more interesting in every way. The sound track is one of the best film-opera jobs I have heard.

And for the singing of Maria Cebotari it is worth anyone's trip to the Little. Cebotari does her own acting, too, and shows up beautifully in both roles.

She takes the part of a much-lauded soprano in Italy who is in love with a talented but unrecognized composer. She makes a bargain with La Scala to sing a contract with them if they will produce her young genius's new opera, name of Sappho.

The opera management agrees, but when Cebotari or Dalgeri, as she is called in the film, faints during a third act of Traviata and is told that it will kill her to sing again, they renege on their bargain. That is, they say they cannot produce the new opera if she cannot sing in it.

All this takes place in and around the first two acts of Traviata. There is also some comedy stuff with the singer's maid and her manager, who are planning to be married as soon as the "boss lady" and her composer can do the same.

Am I going to tell you how it all comes out, and if the lady sings again—and lives? I am not. I wondered long enough myself to let you stew about it for a while.

Cebotari sings her music handsomely. Before it is over, you hear her in most of the last act of Traviata, too. Giovanni Malipiero sings her Alfredo very well.

All this has extra poignancy because it happens to parallel the circumstances around Cebotari's own death less than two years ago. The great singer, only 39, was told that cancer would take her life within a year. With this knowledge, she still continued to sing until the last few months of her life. This film has made it possible to hear her truly great voice more clearly and as it must have sounded than other medium through which we have ever heard it.

For those who love opera, here's a pair of treats. Note especially, in the "Amami Alfredo" the interesting and handsome way the big opera house is built, the boxes right on the stage, and the way the apron of the stage comes out into the house, between the paying customers.

More summer opera at the Little next week, with Pagliacci, sung by Gigli, on Monday.

Bob Kuzava Takes Sting Out of Tigers' Bats, 5-2

Indians Pull Sneak Attack

It Took a Low Blow To Fire Up O'Neill

By Red Smith

CHICAGO, Aug. 5 (NYHT.).—Steve O'Neill, a practicing genius with a broken nose, is a solid and steady-gaited citizen seldom given to flights of excitement. One recalls, for example, the fairly frantic days of September, 1944, when Steve was managing the Detroit Tigers and the team rushed down through the closing weeks of the baseball season tied for first place with the St. Louis Browns, who were to win their only pennant on the very last day.

It was one of those races such as the National League used to have every summer and the American League has enjoyed in recent years. The Tigers, playing at home, would win their game and take a half-game lead, then wait, swllowing their heartburn, for the result of the night game in St. Louis. The Browns would win, too, and morning would find the leaders all square again.

Red Smith

Newspapermen moving into Detroit to cover the last stages of the race, were naturally, curious about what effect the strain was having on the combatants. Visitors arrived in the Tigers' dugout prepared for signs of nervousness, tension, short temper.

They found Steve O'Neill and his small pitcher, Stubby Overmire, sitting side by side on the bench staring miserably at their toes. Both of them, it was clear, were feeling mighty low. About Detroit's inability to open up a lead over the Browns?

"No," Steve said, "did you see what happened to Flat Top this morning?"

Flat Top was a comic strip bandit who had been done in untidily by Dick Tracy in that day's paper.

"Such a messy death," Steve said, "and he was so young. Stubby and I feel terrible about it."

IT MAY BE THAT in his present capacity as manager of the Boston Red Sox, Steve has less leisure than formerly for reading comics, and worries more than he did in Detroit. He seems to have been somewhat upset recently by an experience in Cleveland.

Shirley Povich On Vacation

Shirley Povich, The Washington Post's sports columnist, is on vaction. His column will be resumed upon his return.

Not that he showed any indisposition when he was encountered in a hotel lobby the other day. He talked pleasantly and calmly about the current race in the American Legue, allowed that he'd consider fourth-place Boston's chances almost as good as anybody else's if it weren't for the loss of Ted Williams.

"We feel his absence a little more every day," he said. "That big bat of his, that threat up there at the plate, it's something you can't replace. We miss him more and more all the time."

He didn't mention his recently unhappiness n Cleveland and the subject wasn't brought up. But it was in all the papers at the time. It had begun with an accusation by O'Neill that the Indians had been swiping the signals of visiting catchers, hiding a spy behind the outfield scoreboard to pick up the signs through binoculars and relay them to the Cleveland batters.

Such a complaint didn't sound exactly characteristic of Steve, who lives to know what he's talking about when he pops off. But maybe life in Boston has made him reckless. And, of course, if there actually was funny business involving the scoreboard, Steve was in a position to spot it. He was a coach in Cleveland last year and could have known about portholes in the board.

GRANTING, HOWEVER, that his charges of chicanery were not well advised, the Cleveland club's response was fairly disgraceful. In a public ceremony, Steve was called out in front of 45,000 witnesses and handed a package ostensibly containing a gift from personl admirers from Erie, Pa. When, unwrapping the package in the club house later, Steve found a pair of toy binoculars inside, he blew up and howled to Will Harridge, American League president, for redress.

He was altogether justified in that. A gag is one thing. Public humiliation of a guest is something else. It was gross and tastless and unfunny, and the prankster responsible doesn't deserve the protection of anonymity which the Cleveland club has given him.

It is difficult to understand how this jape could have been arranged without the connivance of the Indians' bosses, for ball clubs don't just turn their parks over to strangers for pre-game ceremonies without inquiring into the nature of the festivities planned.

However, in sending official apologies to O'Neill, the Cleveland president, Ellis Ryan, admitted no foreknowledge of the hoax. He said the man responsible had been reprimanded but did not disclose his identity, explaining that this would leave the culprit and his companions open to jibing all around the league.

Mr. Ryan does not wish to have the feelings of his employes wounded by uncouth remarks from other dugouts. He is a benevolent and solicitous employer who protects his men after they have been allowed to humiliate others.

Coveleskie Dead at 64

Shamokin, Ohio, Aug. 4 (U.P.)—Harry (Giant Killer) Coveleskie, 64, former major league pitcher who knocked the New York Giants out of the pennant in 1908, died at his home here today.

Coveleskie earned the title of "Giant Killer" while playing with the Philadelphia Phillies in 1908, his first year in big league baseball. He defeated the Giants three times in five days, thereby enabling the Chicago Cubs to nose out the New Yorkers for the pennant. The Phils gave him a $50 bonus for the feat.

A former coal miner, Coveleskie later pitched for Cincinnati and Detroit. He retired from the major leagues in 1919 after compiling a lifetime record of 84 victories and 54 defeats and an earned run average of 2.49.

One of his survivors is a brother, Stanley Coveleskie, who pitched the Cleveland Indians to the world championship in 1920 by defeating the Brooklyn Dodgers in three World Series games.

66,743 See Raschi Beat Tribe With 3-Hitter, 1-0

Cleveland, Aug. 4 (AP).—Big Vic Raschi yanked the New York Yankees out of a depressing losing streak tonight, pitching a dazzling 1-0 three-hitter over the Cleveland Indians.

With a crowd of 66,743 on hand—biggest night crowd for either league this season—Raschi passed out three measly singles in separate innings.

The three honored men to figure him out were Bob Kennedy, Jim Hegan and Pitcher Bob Feller, the bottom end of Cleveland's batting order.

It was Feller's eighth loss against ten victories.

Though occasionally in a tight spot, Feller was able to hold the Yankees back except for one inning—the fifth.

In that frame, with one out, Raschi doubled to right and Gene Woodling moved him to third with a single. Raschi was out at the plate on an attempted squeeze play with Phil Rizzuto's bunt, but Hank Bauer singled off Joe Gordon's glove, scoring Woodling.

The Yanks were opening a three-game series with the Indians tonight, having just arrived from Detroit and three straight lickings by the Tigers. Tonight's victory put them back in second place a half game ahead of Cleveland.

In pitching his thirteenth triumph, Raschi fanned eight Indians, walked two, and allowed only five to reach first base. Nobody got to second for Cleveland.

Feller, in the first inning, threw a hard one that struck Rizzuto on the right hand, but the scooter stayed in the game and made five assists.

Among the fans at tonight's game were 145 service men. They got in free under the Indians' recently announced policy.

National AAU

1500-Meter Title Won by Hobelmann

High Point, N. C., Aug. 4.—Barbara Hobelmann of the Ambassador Swimming Club, Washington, D. C., won the National Senior A. A. U. 1500-meter free-style championship today.

She is the first Washington national champion.

Mary Freeman, also of Ambassador, was second in the 300-meter individual medley and placed second in the 200-meter backstroke. In the backstroke, she beat out Bettie Roland of the Takoma Swimming Club, also of Washington.

This year is the first time that Washington has sent a team to the Nationals.

Top race of the opening program, from a spectator standpoint, was the victory of Miss Hobelmann, who won by three-tenths of a second.

The finish turned into a duel between Miss Hobelmann and Carolyn Green of the Ft. Lauderdale (Fla.) Swim Association in the last five of the 30 laps. Miss Green lagged by only a length at the 28th turn, and they made the 29th together.

A fine finishing kick by Miss Hobelmann, a polio victim six years ago and making only her second try in 1500-meter competition, settled the race in the last 15 feet. The winner's time was 22:25.7—more than two minutes better than the winning time of Jean Lutyens of St. Louis, Mo., last year. Miss Lutyens finished sixth in the field of eight.

McCandish Scores Two Aces at Washington Club

Young Teddy McCandish, who never had a hole-in-one before yesterday, made up for lost time while playing at Washington Golf and Country Club.

He scored two.

McCandish, assistant professional at the club, chalked up his first on the 186-yard No. 2 hole, using a No. 7 iron. His second was on the eleventh hole, 174 yards long, with an eight iron.

The 20-year-old McCandish shot a one-under-par 69 for 18 holes playing in a fivesome with George Price, George Price, jr., Les Shomo and Chick Featherstone.

Franz Ricky, owner of a shoe firm, makes it a practice to award a pair of golf shoes to those shooting a hole in one. Ted is holding out for two pairs.

Brash Nats Cut Detroit Lead to 2; Mele Homers

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Detroit, Aug. 4.—Those brash, low caste Nats showed no respect for first-place Detroit tonight, and succeeded where the New York Yankees recently failed by knocking off the Tigers, 5-2, at Briggs Stadium.

To the 41,659 Tiger fans who sat in on the game in 60-degree weather, the most uncouth Nat of them all was Pitcher Bob Kuzava. He was slapped for 11 hits, yet overcame three errors by his teammates to post his sixth victory.

Sam Mele provided Kuzava with the lead he needed when he rocketed his tenth homer of the year into the lower left field stands in the third inning with two men aboard.

Like Champs in Detroit

It was the sixth time in seven games that the Nats played like champions in Briggs Stadium by toppling the Tigers. This time, Washington took charge right after the second place Yankees had knuckled under to the Tigers on three straight days.

The loss reduced Detroit's lead over second place New York to two games.

From the outset, the Tigers did not underestimate the Nats tonight. They sent their ace lefthander, Ted Gray, with five days rest, to the mound, and Ted had lots of stuff in spots, striking out nine men in 5 2-3 innings. But Washington knocked him out of the box, and held a 5-1 lead when he retired. It was Gray's fifth loss against 10 wins.

Kuzava was nicked for a run in the second inning when Cass Michaels made an error on Vic Wertz and Hoot Evers and Johnny Groth belted him for singles.

Meanwhile Gray, showing a good fast ball and an occasional screw ball, was allowing a hit in each of the first two innings, but recording four strikeouts.

Gray registered his fifth and sixth strikeouts in the third while yielding singles to Yost and Vernon. He had two strikes on Sam Mele when the big leftfielder lined a fast ball into the lower leftfield stands for his 10th homer of the season, and the Nats led, 3-1.

Gray kept adding to his strikeouts by fanning Michaels for the third straight time after Leadoff Batter Yost walked in the fifth. Noren reached base on Don Kolloway's error, but Vernon and Mele flied out to end the threat.

The Washington lead grew to 5-1 in the sixth as the Nats knocked Gray, with nine strikeouts, out of the box. Ortiz doubled to left-center and scored on Sam Dente's two-bagger to the left-field corner. With two outs, Yost brought in Dente with a single to center, and Marlin Stuart, a rookie right-hander, appeared in relief. Michaels greeted Stuart with a single, but Noren ended the scoring with a roller to Priddy.

Lipon singled and Kell walked with one out in the sixth. But Kuzava, faced with the fat of Detroit's batting order, whipped a third strike past Wertz, and Evers flied to Mele.

Again in the seventh, the Tigers put two men on but couldn't score. Kolloway singled with one out, and Pat Mullin, pinchhitting for Stuart, walked with two outs. But Lipon helped the Nats by swinging at an outside pitch and fouling to Vernon.

Cass Donates a Run

Paul Calvert came in to pitch for Detroit in the eighth.

Michaels, donor of the first Detroit run, gave them another in the eighth.

Priddy, leading off, reached first on Dente's error, and Kell beat out a hit to short. However, Kuzava appeared to be getting out of trouble when he forced Wertz to fly out, and Evers hit a double play grounder to Dente. Sam grabbed it up and tossed to Michaels, forcing Kell, but Cass held the ball, thinking that it was the third out, while Priddy scored.

Upset, Kuzava pitched a single to Groth and walked Kolloway to fill the bases. Tiger Manager Red Rolfe sent Charlie Keller to the plate to pinch-hit for Swift. Keller ended the rally by flying to Coan.

Priddy deprived the Nats of a run in the ninth when he raced into short right-center to make a one-handed back-to-the-plate grab of Mele's bid for a single, and doubled Noren, who had walked.

The Tigers did nothing in their last turn and the Nats were in, 5-2.

A four-run outburst in the seventh inning gave the Springfield Sallies a 7-4 victory over the Chicago Colleens in a women's hardball game before approximately 5000 fans at Griffith Stadium last night.

Trailing 2-3, the Sallies collected five safeties off Chicago pitcher Eleanor Moore to clinch the contest. A 300-foot triple by Ruth middleton scored Fern Battaglia with the tie-breaking run.

Both pitchers went the route and struck out eight batters. The second game of the two-game series will be played tonight at 8:30 p. m.

Langer Calls Griff Wartime Profiteer

By Bill Gilbert

SENATOR WILLIAM LANGER (R., N. Dak.), took a verbal potshot at Clark Griffith yesterday from the Senate floor and Griffith, from his box at the ball park last night, fired right back.

Langer accused Griffith of "profiteering" and of being "a disgrace to American sports in time of war."

GRIFFITH

LANGER

Langer was referring to Griffith's scheduling of "split doubleheaders" with the New York Yankees here August 15 and against the Detroit Tigers August 29. Separate admissions are required for each game.

Griffith replied that, "He oughtn't to be saying those things. They're not split doubleheaders—they're one game in the afternoon and one at night. They're not split at all."

Griffith continued: "If he knew my record, he wouldn't say that. I've taken care of the wounded soldiers every day, always. I give them 200 of my best seats for every game. I've worked with them through two wars. During World War I, I raised over $150,000 for balls and bats for the boys here and overseas. I wonder if Mr. Langer has done as much."

The 80-year-old president of the Nats said that the Yanks and Red Sox requested the games here this month be played separately. "They're fighting for the pennant and want a couple of hours rest between games," Griffith said. "They asked me to do it for them but if the people of Washington don't want it, I'll make them play during the day or I'll cancel the games."

Langer charged that Griffith had become a "millionaire profiteer" who had gotten rich out of baseball. In reply to this, Griffith said, "I've never gotten rich out of baseball. It's enough of a job to make ends meet. I never have been a profiteer and I don't intend to be. Mr. Langer doesn't know what he's talking about."

Phils Whip Cards, 4-2, On Hamner's 2-Run Triple

Philadelphia, Aug. 4 (AP).—Gran Hamner's eighth-inning triple with two men on base carried the League Leading Philadelphia Phillies to a 4-2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals in the first of a five-game series tonight.

With two out in the eighth, Ded Ennis and Dick Sisler touched Howie Pollet for singles. Then Hamner came through with his triple.

Ennis and Sisler also figured in the other two Phils' runs in the fourth. Ennis singled and scored on Sisler's double. Dick moved up on a sacrifice and counted on Andy Seminick's outfield fly.

Robin Roberts, chalking up his 14th pitching victory, ran his string of scoreless innings to 32 2/3 before Enos Slaughter connected with his tenth homer in the sixth to score Stan Musial.

Norfolk Star Wins Pistol Matches

Offutt Pinion of Norfolk, Va., was the only double open match winner in the sixth annual United States Park Police Pistol Tournament which opened at Fort Totten Park yesterday.

Pinion posted a 295x300 in the opening .45-caliber automatic match, which included 10 each of slow, timed and rapid shots from 25 yards, to edge Leonard Rizzolla, Anacostia Naval Air Station, who scored a 294.

A 182x200 gave Pinion the title in Match No. 2, a 20-shot, slow-fire course from 50 yards. M/Sergt. Theodore Mitchell and Lieut. Co. George Funk, both of the Quantico Marines, shot 181s to top the master class.

Sgt. Mitchell took two firsts, a second, and a third in the master class of matches 2, 3, 4, and 5, to post the best aggregate score of 851x900.

Despite his open victory in Match No. 2, Pinion failed to place in the next three matches and finished with an aggregate of 834, third best in the master class.

Earl Out To Show Up Officials

South Orange, N. J., Aug. 4 (AP).—Earl Cochell, the country's seventh-ranked player, infuriated at not being given even a tryout for the Davis cup team, blasted Jim Brink of Seattle, 6—2, 6—2, today to enter the semi-final round of the Eastern Grass Court championships.

Cochell, a San Franciscan, announced just before his match with Brink that he would blast all opposition by way of retaliation to Alrick Man. jr., non-playing captain of the United States Davis cup team who made the tryout selections yesterday.

Cochell has a highly satisfactory 1950 record, including a victory in the Southampton Invitation, which ended last Sunday.

Joining Cohill in the men's semi-finals were Vic Seixas, a Philadelphian who upset top-seeded Billy Talbert, of New York, 6—8, 12—10, 6—4; Herb Flam, of Beverly Hills, Calif., who downed Sam Match, of San Francisco, 4—6, 6—3, 6—2, and Dick Savitt, of Orange, N. J., who eliminated Tony Trabert, of Cincinnati, 16—14, 6—4.

Cochell played absolutely unbeatable tennis in all departments, clipping the lines and volleying with deadly precision. As an aftermath, he had words in the dressing room with Man.

Downfall of the 31-year-old Talbert wasn't too much of a surprise. Seixas reached the Wimbledon semi-finals, and was at his best. He had the superior stamina, which paid off in the clutch.

The women's quarter-finals produced one upset—Barbara Scofield, of San Francisco, surprised Mrs. Patricia Todd, of La Jolla, Calif., 6—3, 8—6. This put a dent in the "Big Four."

The other members, however, came through in style as Louise Brough, Mrs. Margaret duPont and Doris Hart moved into the semi-finals.

Miss Brough, Wimbleton champion, took a straight-set decision from Nancy Chaffee of Ventura, Calif., 6—3, 8—6. Miss Hart had to go the limit to whip 15-year-old Maureen Connelly of San Diego, Calif., 6—2, 4—6, 6—4. Mrs. duPont, national titleholder, came from behind to defeat Mrs. Helen Perez of Encino, Calif., 3—6, 6—4, 6—3.

Gilbert Bogley of Washington, D. C., and his partner, Charles DeVoe of Indianapolis, were defeated, 5-7, 6-3, 6-3, by Tom Brown, San Francisco, and Tony Trabert, Cincinnati, in the second run of men's doubles.

Coss, Rogers Eliminated

Kalamazoo, Mich., Aug. 4.—Ted Rogers of Chevy Chase, Md., and Tim Coss of Washington were eliminated today in the quarter-finals of the doubles competition in the National Junior and Boys Tennis Championships.

The Washington team seeded sixth, was put out by Clyde Barker of Salt Lake City and Darrell Scheicher of Forest Hills, N. Y., 7—5, 6—3.

Rogers and Coss failed to survive the quarter-finals in singles play yesterday.

Unheralded and unseeded, 18-year-old Pablo Eisenberg of Milburn, N. C., knocked out third seeded acque Grigry of Alhambra, Calif., 2—6, 6—1, 6—3 in the Junior Tennis singles quarterfinals.

He will meet top seeded Ham Richardson of Baton Rouge, La., in tomorrow's semifinals.

Richardson eliminated Norman Peterson of Alameda, Calif., 3—6, 6—1, 6—2 today.

Whitney Reed of Alameda, whipped Jack Frost of Monterey, Calif., 6—3, 4—6, 6—2 and will meet Fred Hagist, who eliminated Bob Perry of Los Angeles, 1—6, 6—2, 6—3.

Lockman's Hit Leads Giants To 3-2 Victory

New York, Aug. 4 (AP)—Whitey Lockman singled with the bases loaded in the eighth inning tonight to highlight a three-run rally that gave the New York Giants a 3-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Piratese loaded the bases with one out in the ninth but relief pitcher Dave Koslo got pinch-hitter Ray Mueller to bang into a game ending doubleplay.

It was the 12th victory in the last 13 starts for the resurgent Giants.

In the hectic eighth, three Pittsburgh players were banished. And two bench warmers, Infielders Danny Murtaugh and Batting Practice Pitcher George Hennessey, were tossed out.

Griffith Foe Runs Havana Again

West Palm Beach, Fla., Aug. 4 (AP).—Merito Acosta, armed with a Cuban Court order, has regained control of the Havana Cubans of the Florida International League.

Acosta, once a major league baseball star, won a decision in Havana which returns him to the presidency from which he was ousted last March by a rival faction headed by the parent Washington Senators.

Phil O'Connell, president of the Class B loop, said he received a cablegram from Acosta yesterday notifying him of the court decision.

Acosta, one of the founders of the FI League, said he will assume active control of the club immediately. Oscar Rodriguez, manager of the club since its inception, will * * * * * * be out.

The intra-club squabble came to a boil last March when the Washington Senator faction, headed by Clark Griffith and Joe Cambria, voted in a new slate of officers.

Griffith and Cambria own two thirds of the stock in the club. But each stockholder controls only one vote despite the amount of stock owned. Under that provision, Acosta and his "side" control the majority vote.

Acosta said the Washington faction has an appeal to a higher Cuban court, but he is confident the legal action which restored him to the presidency will be upheld.

The Washington faction in the intra-team dispute owns $32,000 worth of stock. Acosta and 10 others own $11,000 worth.

When Acosta was voted out March 6, he was charged with mismanagement.

On March 16 the Washington group elected Dr. Antonio Casuso, president; Griffith and Oscar Bluege, director of the Washington farm system as vice presidents; Cambria as treasurer and business manager, and Dr. Jose Martinez as secretary.

'Don't Worry' Griffith Told by Attorney

In Washington last night, Clark Griffith said that he had conferred via telephone with his Havana attorney, Jose Martinez, and that Martinez told him "Don't worry" over a Havana Appelate Court ruling yesterday that gave control of the Havana baseball tem bck to Mrito Acosta.

Griffith stated that Acosta's case was based on an old Cuban law and that he was confident the law would be ignored when he appeals. The Nats' owner said that he can hold a special meeting at anytime and put out Acosta again or he can wait until next February 2, the date for the next regularly scheduled board of directors meeting.

He stated that he has no particular objection to Acosta, except that "he acted arbitrary and would not accept a $3,000 per year position with the board of directors after we had voted him out. We did not think he was qualified to run the club."

NOT WANTED—Mickey Cohen (left) of Los Angeles, often a target for gang guns and bombs, stares from behind bars at the Chicago detective bureau. Cohen Freed After Vow to Quit Chicago

Chicago, Aug. 4 (AP).—Gambler Mickey Cohen, who came to Chicago for pleasure but ended up in jail, was released today.

The dapper Californian and his traveling companion, John Stompanato, 34, a Los Angeles jeweler, were removed to jail from their suite at the Ambassador hotel last night.

Chief of Detectives John T. O'Malley told Cohen to get out of Chicago "before your scar tissue is found in the streets." Cohen, who is 36, has been the target for gang guns and bombs in Los Angeles.

Julius Miner, Chief Justice of the Criminal Court, ordered that Cohen and Stompanato be booked or released by 3 p. m. today. Police released them because they had no charge to put against them.

Cohen told the judge he would leave for California as soon as he was released. He said the men from the boxing world who were in his apartment when police entered were just friends, and he denied that he was planning to promote a fight or enter the boxing field here.

The gambler said he went to school in Chicago and lived here until he was 28.

He said his only interest is his haberdashery in Los Angeles. When reporters asked him about Senator Estes Kefauver's committee which is investigating crime, Cohen said, "I can't even pronounce that guy's (Kefauver's) name."

'Tap' Probe Set Tuesday

thing should be done about this.

"This man, Shimon, came to my office. He examined the office to see if my telephone had been tapped. I saw him only twice. The second time he told me the man wouldn't bother me any more."

Brewster said he was shown an FBI picture of the man who had been following him. He would not identify him other than to say, "He was from New York and had a criminal record."

Brewster said he assumed Shimon had been put to some expense by his investigation so he ordered his administrative assistant, Mrs. Frances Dustin, to pay him.

He said he paid the money from his own pocket because he did not consider it to be committee business. He said also he does not recall knowing Shimon to be a member of the Metropolitan police force.

The case goes back to the Republican-controlled 80th Congress in which Brewster headed a committee which investigated Hughes, then head of the Trans World Airline. Brewster, a backer of the rival Pan-American Airways plan for a single overseas airline, has been accused by columnist Drew Pearson of instigating the tapping by Shimon of Hughes' wire at the Mayflower Hotel, something he denies.

The question in Democratic minds, it appears, was just how definitely the tapping could be pinned on anyone. It was this that led the top Democratic Senators to check the Shimon report before giving a go-ahead to Chairman Neely (D., W. Va.) of the District Committee to call for the investigation.

Senator Pepper (D., Fla.) who will head the investigation is not a member of his party's policy committee and he said yesterday he had not "actually seen" the report.

Investigation Delayed

Pepper had intended to get his committee together either yesterday or Monday but had to put off the meeting until 10 a. m. Tuesday because of the Senate's recess until then. Meanwhile, committee counsel Gerhard P. Van Arkel is busy drawing up an agenda and list of witnesses.

The grand jury on Thursday also heard Pan-American's vice president, Samuel F. Pryor, among its witnesses, it was learned yesterday.

Friday's witnesses included some of Shimon's former associates: Fay, his former boss; Mrs. Jennie Langer, Fay's secretary; and Detectives Thomas I. Herlihy and Walter Cook, both for a time Shimon's assistants in Fay's investigations squad.

Because of the statute of limitations on the case, an indictment will have to be handed down next week, if at all.

Closed Sessions Begun on Ways To Curb Reds

By The Associated Press

The House Un-American Activities Committee tried to agree yesterday on the exact language of a proposed measure to curb Communists.

Already in agreement on the need for such legislation, the committee started closed-door sessions in an effort to get one or more bills ready for action on the House floor. The sessions may last a week or more.

Before the committee are bills sponsored by three of its members—Chairman Wood (D., Ga.), Representative Nixon (R., Calif.) and Representative Walter (D., Pa.).

The Nixon bill generally is referred to by supporters and opponents alike as the Mundt-Nixon bill. It is similar to a measure passed by the House in 1948, but which failed to pass the Senate. It is much like the Mundt-Ferguson-Johnston bill now pending in the Senate.

The Nixon bill, among other things, would require the Communist Party to (a) register with the Justice Department and (b) provide a list of its members. It also would require "Communist-front" organizations to register, but they would not be required to list their membership.

Wood's bill would make it unlawful for any Government employe to belong to the Communist Party or any organization listed by the Attorney General as subversive. It would also make it unlawful for persons affiliated with the Communist Party or other subversive organizations to work on defense contracts.

Walter would require all Communists to register with the Justice Department as agents of a foreign government. This, he contends would drive Communists into the open, where they could be watched more carefully.

'Goings-On' Send Beauty To Hospital

New Orleans, Aug. 4 (U.P.).—The police homicide squad and emergency truck crew got tired of wasting their time at 603 North Hennessy st. today and took "Miss New Orleans of 1948" to Charity Hospital for observation.

She is 21-year-old Barbra Jean Floyd, a raven-haired beauty who was spanked by her ex-husband in a hotel lobby last year.

Today, police were summoned to the Floyd home twice in two hours on a "stabbing" call and then on a "suicide" call.

Barbra Jean, in a pair of skimpy shorts slammed the door in the officers' faces. A moment later, her mother slipped out and retreated to the home of a sister two blocks away.

There, guarded by a big dog, she told the cops she wasn't answering any questions, but assured Assistant District Attorney Peter Compagno that Barbara Jean was 'in no danger."

The police waited for about an hour and left, convinced there hadn't been a stabbing. Reporters on the front porch smelled gas and telephoned police a "suicide" seemed to be in progress.

A squad car of police and an emergency truck screeched up. Two policemen burst into the house to find gas hissing from a bathroom heater. Barbara Jean was in the kitchen in a close-fitting black dress.

The cops turned the heater off and told Barbara Jean they were going to take her to the hospital. She went quietly.

Board Refuses Parole for Andrew May

The U. S. Parole Board yesterday denied the plea of former Representative Andrew J. May (D., Ky.) to get out of jail.

May is serving an 8-24 month term on charges that he accepted money for influencing war contract awards in World War II. He was chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee at the time.

A spokesman for the board declined to give the reason for denying May's appeal for parole. He said the board "weighed all the factors in the case."

The board also has denied parole to Henry M. and Murray W. Garsson, who were convicted of bribing the Congressman.

May became eligible for parole yesterday. He could be released July 13, 1951, on good behavior although the sentence runs until December 4, 1951.

Woman Navy Doctor En Route to Far East

She is Lieut. Comdr. Bernice R. Walters, a native of New York and daughter of Murray L. Rosenthal, Boston. Lieutenant Commander Walters is the first Navy woman doctor ever assigned to duty aboard a Navy ship. She is on the staff of the hospital ship Consolation.

Dr. Walters' husband, Lieut. Herbert N. Walters, a Naval aviator, was killed last April in an accident aboard an aircraft carrier.

Truman Intervenes in Labor Dispute on New York Central

From Wire Dispatches By The Associated Press

He created an emergency board to investigate the dispute on the road involving four unions. The brotherhoods threatened to strike May 25, but called it off at the request of the National Mediation Board. No other strike date was set. Yesterday's action by President Truman automatically prevents a strike for 60 days.

In other developments:

1. The Senate Labor Committee approved a bill yesterday to permit union shop contracts, now barred by the Railway Labor Act, in the railroad industry.

The bill, patterened after similar provisions in the Taft-Hartley law, would permit railway management and labor to sign contracts requiring new employes to join unions within 60 days.

An identical measure was approved earlier this week by the House Commerce Committee.

2. Union Officials and contractors reached agreement yesterday on terms aimed at settling a five-day painters' strike which has delayed some work on "mothball fleet" vessels destined for Korean War shipping.

A wage increase of 7½ cents an hour offered by the contractors was accepted by union officials.

3. A five-week strike of longshoremen on New Jersey's Hudson River piers ended with all parties in the intraunion dispute agreeing to submit issues to arbitration.

4. In Pittsburgh, the CIO United Steelworkers started a new drive to organize 10,000 Weirton Steel Co. employes now without any union representation.

5. A committee of New York World-Telegram and Sun employes yesterday charged the New York Newspaper Guild (CIO) with "wantonly disregarding" the sentiments of its members in attempts to settle an 8-week-old strike against the newspaper.

Capitalites Cool In August Presence

It was just 80 for a high temperature yesterday. The forecast today is for the same high, with sunny skies and low humidity.

Sunday, fair weather and a little warmer is predicted, so that it looks like a very nice weekend all in all. The weatherman even used the phrase "cool over the weekend." Imagine that, now, in a Washington August.

Ole Miss, Georgia, Tulane LSU Fined by Conference

The Southeastern Conference opposed the current NCAA standards for athletic scholarships, but placed them in force last year. Formerly, the SEC granted athletes room, board, books and tuition and $10 per month for incidentals.

Now it limits such aid to actual expenses. In most cases, athletes must work for the expense money.

Those ruled out were:

Mississippi—Jimmy Cole, Roger L. Gaynor and Bill Russell, backs, and Jimmy Cole and Hugh Ballard, ends, all from Memphis and all 1949 stars there.

Tulane—Robert Holladay, Columbia, La., halfback. A 190-pounder, Holladay won the 100 and 220-yard dashes in track also.

Louisiana State—William Burtchaell, tackle, and Hayden Mayeau, back, both stars of New Orleans' Holy Cross team.

Employes, Officials Reported Bewildered By U. S. Budget Moves

Bothered and bewildered—that accurately described employes and officials alike in the Government's so-called nondefense agencies. They are in a stew over the long-drawn-out 1951 budget.

The employes are concerned over the loss of their jobs. The officials are trying to figure out how to operate the Government when they're kept in the dark on how much money and how many employes they are to have for the 1951 fiscal year that started July 1.

Many of the "nondefense" agencies are slated to get war jobs—Commerce, Interior, National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, Labor, Agriculture and Civil Service to name a few. The Byrd-Bridges rider, adopted by the Senate, cuts their budgets a minimum of 10 percent.

What should these and other agencies covered by the rider do? Should they start to fire employes immediately, or should they wait and take a chance getting war work to which they could transfer people from their normal activities?

This much is clear—there will be an over-all cut and the Byrd-Bridges rider is the least objectionable, from the employe viewpoint of those proposed. The B-B amendment would knock out a maximum of 50,000 jobs, but the actual number would probably be somewhat smaller as it gives agency heads the opportunity to make cuts in appropriations other than for salaries.

The over-all job-and-budget-cutting riders as approved by the House would abolish upward of 300,000 Federal jobs within the next year. The Taber-Thomas rider would force reductions in Post Office, Defense, and a number of other agencies exempt by B-B. In addition, the House okayed the Jensen rider to forbid all but a few agencies from filling 9 of every 10 vacated jobs.

Senate-House conferees on the budget bill will be faced with writing an overall rider between the House and Senate versions. The final rider can't be less than B-B and it can't be tougher than T-T and Jensen combined. It seems to be a good bet that B-B will prevail since the Korean war came into the picture after the House acted.

LEAVE: The final budget bill will carry a rider to restrict annual leave earned this calendar year by Federal workers. That's a cinch, too. The House bill provides that employes should take this year's leave by December 31, or else lose it. The Senate would allow them until June 30, 1951, to take leave earned this year.

The Senate also adopted an amendment to provide cash payments for accumulated annual leave for those employes who enter the military services.

The Senate did kill off, for this session at least, the move to reduce annual and sick leave for classified and per diem employes. The amendment by Senator Douglas (D., Ill.) to abolish annual and sick leave for new employes who have less than a full calendar year of continuous service, and to fix 20 days annual and 12 days sick leave for all other employes was beaten badly.

This was the second time in the past several months that a Douglas amendment to cut leave was defeated by the Senate. But the Illinois Senator hasn't given up the fight. He'll try it again next year, and his bill to trim leave is pending before the Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee.

AMENDMENTS: The budget bill carries riders to give the Commerce and State secretaries sweeping authority to fire employes on security grounds . . . Senator Wherry (R., Nebr.) offered and withdrew an amendment to exempt Agriculture's meat inspectors from being fired by the Byrd-Bridges amendment. The fact is that 356 already have been discharged in anticipation of a budget cut.

An amendment by Senator Saltonstall (R., Mass.) to forbid the use of stop-watches on jobs in Navy establishments, and to require the Navy to do more of its own work in its shops was ruled out of order . . . An amendment by Senator McCarran (D., Nev.) to exempt the entire Justice Department from B-B was defeated. . . . Also an amendment by Senator Wherry to make a flat 15 percent cut in the budget, and a rider by Senator Magnuson (D., Wash.) to require Federal workers who travel abroad to use American ships were turned down.

Youth Dies Of Injuries In Crash

4 Other Teen-Agers Hurt in Accident; Road Walker Killed Instantly by Auto

Franklin Blevins, 19, of Hoadly, Va., died last night of injuries suffered Thursday night in an accident in which four other teenagers also were hurt.

Virginia State Police said he suffered a fractured skull, cuts and abrasions when a car in which he was riding collided with a tractor-trailer truck on U. S. 1 about 2½ miles south of Fort Belvoir at about 9 p. m. Thursday.

In another accident Charles W. Abernathy, 50, of Elk Garden, W. Va., was killed instantly at 12:24 a. m. yesterday when he was struck by an automobile while crossing Baltimore blvd., a mile and a half north of Berwyn, Md.

His body was hurled 50 feet, State Police said. Abernathy was pronounced dead at the scene by Dr. John T. Maloney, Prince Georges County medical examiner.

Body Hurled 50 Feet

Police said Abernathy was struck by a north-bound car driven by Anthony G. Costanzo, 25, of 2500 Q st. nw. Costanzo was charged with manslaughter by motor vehicle and released in $1000 bond.

Blevins, according to police, was a passenger in a car driven by James D. Pennington, 16, of Hoadly. Three sisters, all of Lorton, Va., riding in the Pennington car, also were hurt.

One sister, Ruth Anne Harley, 15, suffered a fractured leg, abrasions of the head and shock.

The others, Irene Harley, 18, and Jennette Harley, 16, were treated and released, as was Pennington.

Truck Driver Not Injured

Police said the truck driver, Daniel W. Martin, 24, of Wilkesboro, N. C., was uninjured. No charges weer placed.

Meanwhile, Daniel Pittman, 24, of 3219 13th st. nw., whose neck was broken in a crash early Thursday morning on Route 5, a half mile north of TB, Md., remained in critical condition at Gallinger Hospital.

The hospital said Willie Jones, 32, of 3615 13th st. nw., hurt in the same accident, was not in serious condition.

Granger Macfarlane and Lee Merriam of the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Rescue Squad, returning from a first aid demonstration at Colonial Beach, Va., rushed the injured men to the hospital.

Police said the car missed a turn, went down a 4-foot embankment, rolled completely over, and came to rest in an upright position.

The driver, Mrs. Yvonne Sawyer, 26, of 2607 Sherman ave. nw., who was uninjured, was charged with reckless driving by Prince Georges County police.

2 in Streetcar-Auto Crash Still in Critical Condition

Three persons, two in critical condition, remained hospitalized yesterday as a result of a streetcar crash into two cabs and an automobile Thursday at Pennsylvania ave. and 3d st. nw.

In critical condition were Mrs. Minnie M. Weaver, 61, of 328 Ridge rd. se., at Emergency Hospital with severe head lacerations, several broken ribs and possible back injuries, and Leonard Moore, 38, of 2714 30th st. se., at Mt. Alto Hospital with a fractured pelvis and a compound fracture of the left leg.

Also at Emergency Hospital was Thomas F. O'Brien, 34, of 2306 Eccleston st., Silver Spring, Md., operator of the streetcar. His condition was not considered serious.

Released from the hospital yesterday were Mrs. Ethel Hoke, 51, of Duke st. extended, Annandale, Va., and Mrs. Virginia Gregory, 28, of 1535 Simms dr. se.

Fatally injured was Frank Phillips, 51, of 1527 D st. ne.

Police said that if doctors approve, they will question O'Brien today. Right after the accident he told police he didn't remember anything until he found himself sitting on the steps of the streetcar after the accident.

Police hope to learn what happened to O'Brien to cause his streetcar to pass through a red light at the intersection.

AIU investigators were told by several witnesses that the streetcar came to a stop before it reached the intersection and as it stopped the motorman rested his head on his arms. Then, they said, his head suddenly snapped back and the streetcar started forward.

Wythe County Polio Deaths Rise to 14

Wytheville, Va., Aug. 4 (AP).—Two more deaths from polio were reported in Wythe County today, including that of a 20-year-old expectant mother, making a total of 14 deaths among the county's 120 cases.

Today's total included one new case from Wytheville and three from other parts of the county. They were part of the 13 new cases turned in to the State Health Department for a State total of 274.

Mrs. Charles O. Jackson, of Wytheville, died today at a Roanoke hospital. She was not considered seriously ill when she entered the hospital early today. Her condition improved and then rapidly became worse.

In East Riverdale

Cop's Bullet Ends Fracas; Three Held

A heavy rock and a shotgun were arrayed against two police revolvers momentarily in East Riverdale, Md., last night.

One of the police revolvers barked authoritatively and the show was over.

At about 8 p. m., in the 5400 block of Powhatan st., two cruising East Riverdale policemen, Pvts. John W. Miller and Clarence R. Weaver, were forced from the road by an approaching car on the wrong side of the highway.

They forced the car to the curb a short distance away and three men tumbled out. They were later identified as Lewis W. Wells, 39, the driver, and his brother, Howard B. Wells, 41, both of 5306 Powhatan st., and Bud Kennedy, 41, of 1613 E st. ne.

Police said Kennedy rushed into the home of the Wells brothers and emergd with a 16-gauge shotgun. Miller and Weaver drew revolvers and ordered Kennedy to drop the shotgun. Lewis Wells picked up a heavy rock and started to advance on the policemen. Miller turned and shot Wells in the left leg. Wells dropped the rock. Kennedy dropped the shotgun.

After treatment at Prince Georges General Hospital, Lewis Wells was jailed with the other two in Hyattsville. He was charged with assault on an officer and driving while drunk. Kennedy was charged with assault with a dangerous weapon and disorderly conduct. Howard Wells was charged only with disorderly conduct.

Cliff to Act As Assistant Health Officer

District Commissioners appointed Dr. Arthur E. Cliff acting assistant District health officer yesterday. The position has been vacant since Dr. Daniel L. Seckinger was promoted to health officer nine months ago.

Dr. Cliff

Seckinger said he had recommended the temporary appointment because the work of his office has become "tremendously heavy." He gave no indication whether Cliff would later be appointed on a permanent basis or when such an appointment will be made.

Cliff, 42, is assistant director of the Health Department's medical inspection service in the public schools. Seckinger said Cliff will give up this work for the present and help him with administrative work on a full time basis.

A native of Pittsburgh, Cliff graduated from George Washington University Medical School in 1933.

D. C. Man Shows How He Won Portable Typewriter Title

With or without mittens or blindfold, it's all the same to Cortez Petres, 43-year-old American champ on the portable typewriter.

Peters, in a demonstration at the Central Typewriter and Adding Machine Co., 2019 14th st. nw., yesterday kept the machine purring—maybe not quite up to his best, which occurs only when he is in training, but good enough for any employer.

His official record is 141 net five-stroke words per minute per hour on a standard machine, which means hitting about 149 because you lose 10 words from your gross for each error. On the portable his record is 115 net for 20 minutes.

A native of Washington, Peters discovered an aptitude for typing while taking a business course at Dunbar High School, from which he was graduated in 1923.

Peters, who lives at 3640 11th st. nw., has established business schools in Washington, Baltimore and Chicago.

He will give demonstrations again today at noon, 2, 4, 6 and 8:30 p. m. at Central Typewriter and Adding Machine Co.

Kri Kri of Crete Arrives at District Zoo; Rare Goat Symbolizes Marshall Plan Aid

By Bill Klemm—The Washington Post

ONCE IN A GOAT'S LIFE—Kri Kri, the rare agrimi, shyly drops his head, as though he were just another little goat, during presentation ceremony at the Zoo yesterday. Greek Ambassador Athanase G. Politis (right) presents the rare animal to Dr. William M. Mann

One of the biggest receptions ever given a goat was tendered yesterday to Kri Kri of Crete.

Gift of Crete Islanders in appreciation of Marshall Plan aid, the rare agrimi—believed to be the only one in captivity in this country—was welcomed to the Zoo by Greek Ambassador Athanase G. Politis, Acting ECA Administrator William C. Foster and a hundred or so other officials and citizens.

Kri Kri was presented by Eftikios Protopapadakis, the Crete shepherd who found him high on Crete's crags when Kri Kri was but two days old and with the help of a nanny goat, raised him to his present two years.

It was Eftikios' idea to give the rare animal famed in mythology, to America as a thank-you gesture. He and his fellow mountaineers raised a million drachmas—only $66 American money but a fortune in Crete—to help pay expenses of transportation.

Referring to President Truman as the "saviour of mankind for the assistance he is sending Greece and other small nations," Eftikios, who wore a formidable moustache, handed over the animal with the words:

"To show our appreciation, I, as a shepherd, offer you the small rare animal called an agrimi."

While the speeches reeled off, the handsome Kri Kri—apparently unaware that he was being referred to as "one of the world's rarest and most interesting creatures from the viewpoint of zoology and of history" nibbled proffered grass and other objects, like any little goat.

A male, he has nice brown-and-gray coloring and handsome goatee. His horns are 13½ inches long. He is a capra aegagrus cretensis, a kind of wild goat or antelope. But he was nice and tame yesterday and children petted him.

Zoo Director William M. Mann pointed out that it was a big day zoologically for the Zoo, acquiring the rare animal.

Protopapadakis brought a marble plaque for Kri Kri's cage. The marble was removed from the same quarry on Mount Pentele from which the marble used in building the Parthenon was taken. He also brought a traditional Cretan knife, with a horn handle and a beautiful silver sheath, for President Truman.

Ida S. Taylor Gets Berth on Welfare Board

Mrs. Ida S. Taylor, a former District Welfare Department employe, was appointed to the Board of Public Welfare yesterday by the District Commissioners.

Mrs. Taylor

She replaces Dr. Ethel L. Nixon, who resigned earlier in the week to accept a position at Johns Hopkins University Hospital. The term expires June 30, 1952.

Mrs. Taylor is now head of the Gordon Convalescent Home, 421 T st. nw., which she founded 10 years ago. A native of Harrisburg, Pa., she came here to attend Howard University and was the first graduate of its school of social work.

Since her graduation in 1919 she has been engaged in various fields of social work in Washington. She was a special worker at Juvenile Court, a case worker for the Welfare Department and an assistant superviser in parent education with the WPA before establishment of the Gordon Home in 1940.

Husband Stabbed

John S. Wylie, 28, was stabbed in the chest with an 8-inch carving knife last night during what police said was a family quarrel in his home at 114 Varnum st. ne. He is in undetermined condition at Casualty Hospital. His wife, Maxine, 24, was charged with assault with a dangerous weapon.

81 Years Old

Welfare Aide Feted On Birthday

Aloysius J. Driscoll, secretary of the Board of Public Welfare, didn't want anyone making a fuss about his eighty-first birthday yesterday.

Driscoll

But the word leaked out and before he knew it there was a cake with candles and hearty pats on the back for Driscoll in the Board offices at the Municipal Building.

Driscoll, who lives with one of his two daughters, Mrs. Gertrude Howard, at 2651 Woodley rd. nw., reported for work as usual yesterday, paid his respects to the reporters in the press room and then went to his office to sign a batch of papers.

But a secretary in the Board office suspected yesterday was Driscoll's birthday. She verified the date and an impromptu party was arranged.

Driscoll is serving his third six-year term as a member of the Board. He served as chairman of Draft Board No. 2 during both World Wars and still attends weekly meetings of the Board.

He founded the Mid-City Citizens Association and served as its president for 32 years. He is also citizens association editor of the Washington Times-Herald.

Georgia Ave. Widening Bids Expected in Fall

Bids for construction on the Georgia ave. widening project from Silver Spring to Glenmont are expected to be let before fall, a Maryland State Roads Commission spokesman said yesterday.

Albert Gordon, executive assistant to the commission chairman, said a right-of-way problem still exists, but it is expected it will be resolved in time for an early advertising for bids.

Another Group Backs Fairfax Manager Plan

By William H. Smith
Post Reporter

The Fairfax County Committee for Good Government last night added its voice to that of other groups indorsing a changeover to the county manager form of government.

In a Fairfax Courthouse hearing before a special commission appointed to study the county administration, a group of spokesmen from the committee termed the county manager plan "the only answer to Fairfax County's existing problems."

A public referendum on the county manager form is to be held this year at an unspecified date.

The committee's spokesmen lashed out particularly at what they called an inequality of representation in the present system of electing supervisors from each of the six magisterial districts.

With voters in each district selecting their own representative, they contended, three of the six supervisors are chosen by only 19 percent of the population.

Mrs. Donald Rock, who lives near Falls Church, said the county manager plan would continue to provide for district representation, but would permit all voters in the county to participate in selection of all six of the supervisors.

Under this system, she said, the entire board would be responsive to all the voters of the county.

Donald Wilkins of Falls Church, told the commission that "sectional thinking" of supervisors under the present system has hampered activity of the planning commission and other county-wide agencies.

James Hoofnagle, of Belle Haven, denied charges by proponents of the present form of government that a county manager form of government would set up the manager as "dictator." He said the manager would serve merely as an administrative officer to carry out policies which would be determined by the board of supervisors.

Others who spoke in favor of the county manager form were Omer Hirst, Annandale real estate man, and Merrill Armour, an attorney, of Colvin Run.

Falls Church Confident on School Bonds Despite Row

Officials Believe $700,000 Issue Not To Be Halted by Manager Dispute

Two Falls Church officials expressed confidence yesterday that the city's $700,000 school bond issue will not be halted by current squabbling over who will occupy the post of city manager.

The bonds, awarded at a 2.25 percent interest rate last June 14 to Otis and Co. of New York, must be properly signed by the city manager before their August 15 delivery date.

Wells

The City Council, apparently reluctant to appoint acting city manager Roy F. Dunn to the post of permanent city manager, voted last Wednesday to give the job instead to Harry Wells, currently city clerk.

Temporary Injunction

A temporary injunction, granted Thursday in Fairfax Circuit Court to five Dunn supporters, enjoined Wells from performing any acts as city manager until an August 15 hearing. This would prevent his signature of the bonds.

A special council meeting is scheduled for Monday night, to discuss a council committee's recommendation Thursday night that Dunn be appointed manager after all. No place has been set yet.

The $700,000 school bond issue is designed to cover cost of a 325-pupil high school, and a 120-pupil primary school building, plans for which are expected to be finished this month.

Mayor Albert M. Orme said yesterday the bonds "are not endangered at all" by the current controversy.

Orme Confident

The mayor expressed belief the city manager dispute would be resolved to allow printing of the bonds, and their delivery on time.

He said the city has been told the bonds "must" be delivered August 15, but that "I imagine we'd get some reprieve" from bond buyers, if the deadline were not met.

School Superintendent Irvin Schmitt said yesterday, "Im not worrying about getting our money sometime."

The superintendent said he feared a delay in receipt of bond funds, might force the school board to borrow part of the money elsewhere, at a higher interest rate, to cover beginning construction costs.

Ex-Waitress' Death Here Called Suicide

Mrs. Josephine E. P. Hill, 30, who was found dead Thursday night in her apartment, was declared a suicide yesterday by Dr. Christopher J. Murphy, deputy coroner.

Mrs. Hill, a former waitress, was found in her apartment, at 1887 Brentwood rd. ne., by relatives who were worried because they had not heard from her since July 27. She apparently had been dead a week or more.

Police said a quantity of sleeping capsules was found on a bedroom dresser along with a note indicating the woman was despondent and intended to take her life. There was more than $200 in cash in the apartment, police said.

Mrs. Hill's relatives said she had been twice married and twice divorced and has two children by the first marriage who live in North Carolina.

6 Burns are bad business. A first aider's jobs are to relieve pain, prevent infection, and treat shock. For mild burns, apply sterile petroleum or burn ointment, then cover with a layer of sterile, fine mesh gauze, and bandage.

For serious burns, or extensive ones, keep the patient completely quiet, then call a physician.

Policeman Saves Woman's Life; 'What's the Fuss?' She Asks

A little old lady, saved from almost certain death under the wheels of a speeding fire engine, dumfounded her rescuer yesterday by asking, "What's all the fuss about?"

Said Police Pvt. William Props, 48, of the Traffic Division, who had raced 45 feet across the 15th st. and New York ave. intersection at the risk of his own life to snatch her from the path of the oncoming fire engine, "I was too flabbergasted to ask her name or make out a jaywalking ticket.

"She just walked away while I stood there gasping for breath."

The engine was en route to the Veterans Administration Regional Office, 1825 H st. nw., where 700 employes had filed to the street when a fuse blew and the lights went out about 1:55 p. m.

Props was congratulated by a number of eyewitnesses of the rescue, and others telephoned Inspector Walter T. Storm, acting chief of police.

Props, who has spent 15 of his 16 years with the Metropolitan Police at the intersection, was commended in 1947 by Capital Transit for preventing the collision of two streetcars. He has been commended six other times for feats while directing traffic.

Pupil Failures Cost Virginia $1.9 Million

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 4 (AP).—The pupil failures in the first three grades of the elementary schools during the 1948-49 semester cost the State of Virginia $1,900,000, Dr. Robert O. Nelson, superintendent of Newport News schools, said here today.

Dr. Nelson's talk on "Elementary Curriculum" was made during a panel discussion at the conference on "The Public and the Public Schools in Virginia" at Mary Washington College.

He said there were 15,000 failures in the first three grades of the white elementary schools in 1948-49. The mean cost of education per pupil in average daily attendance was given as $124.58.

Only 83.75 percent of Virginia junior pupils were promoted last year despite the hue and cry about "watered courses" and 100 percent promotions in the public schools, Alfred L. Wingo, supervisor of research for the State Department of Education, told the conference.

Nevertheless, he said, he did not think "promotions are large enough" and that he was "deeply concerned over the large number of failures" which he considered far too high.

'Pocket' Variety

White Sulphus Springs, W. Va., Aug. 4 (AP).—The first president of Russia told the Virginia Bar Association tonight that the Korean war is a Russian-planned scheme to exhaust the power of the Western World.

Alexander Karensky, who was nemed head of the provisional government in Russia after Czar Nicholas was dethroned in 1917, said that the "Koreal pocket was is a beginning of the beginning."

The former Russian leader, who came to this country in 1940 after France fell to the Hitler legions, noted that a series of widely separated pocket wars might well continue for a "long time." Although the Kremlin's policy is one of caution, Stalin would throw Russia into a general war to accomplish his ambition of spreading communism, he declared.

Earlier, the judicial section heard a speech by Chief Judge Bolitha J. Laws of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia, in which he called on the judges to "come down" from their high places and mingle with the lawyers to discover the faults of their courts.

"We judges do not often learn of the faults of the courts," Judge laws said, "because we do not elbow with the attorneys who practice in them."

Officers elected by the judicial section included Walter T. McCarthy, Arlington, chairman; Kennoh C. Whittle, Martinsville, vice chairman and Burnett Miller jr., Culpepper, secretary.

Boys MUST Fight

Ideal Aim Is to Avoid Battle Unless Attacked

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

NO MOTHER wants her child to be battered and beaten by other children. She has a natural resentment against any child who attacks her own and she feels sorry for her hurt lamb.

But any man-child has to learn to fight before he reaches the age when, presumably, good sense and judgment will lead him to use diplomacy instead of fists to solve his difficulties.

The child who shies away from physical combat is going to be in hot water most of his life. He will be the natural target of every pugilistically inclined urchin. For where could one ask for a more satisfying victory than against the boy who won't fight back?

He Must Not Run

THE IDEAL is for a child to refrain from fighting unless attacked. The child who doesn't want to fight will live up to that dictum to the letter. He will go even farther. He won't fight even when he is hit. That is bad. If he turns tail and runs home to mother he will be ridiculed by his friends and parents alike. They expect him to defend himself.

Even a show of fight will discourage a child. And if fighting results in a bloody nose or a cut lip it is a small price to pay for one's self respect and the respect of one's peers.

Children should not grow up fearing pain and running like a deer from anyone or anything which seems about to inflict it. Pain is more easily borne if one feels oneself courageous. In fact it doesn't hurt at all. The classic answer of any spunky child who brings his hurts home to a sympathetic mother is, "Well, if you think I look bad, you ought to see the other fellow."

Childhood Time to Fight

AS the mother of a son and the grandmother of four grandsons, I know just how women cringe from physical combat and feel that it ought to be abolished. I am convinced that childhood is the time for fighting and by adulthood people should have outgrown such methods of solving controversies.

Let the father get out and wrestle with his boys, recognizing their feebleness in comparison to himself. Let him show them how to develop muscles with a punching bag. And, then, when they are able to defend themselves, let him counsel them to be big enough not to fight unless attacked. But the best lesson a boy can learn is how to parry a blow as well as receive one, to stand up to combat when it comes to him.

One-Piece Buttoned Dress Is Paris Miracle of Fancy

By Sally Swing

United Press Staff Correspondent

Paris, Aug. 4 (U.P.).—A French dressmaker showed a one piece dress today which she expects will revolutionize fashions.

Blond Mme. Georgette Renal, vice president of the Association of Haute Couture, clasped her hands excitedly as one of her mannequins paraded in a simple chic black dress.

"Look," she said, "no seams."

The miracle of a fancy draped and buttoned dress made entirely of one piece of material is the result of Mme. Renal's 40 years in high fashion.

The buxom designer started when she was 12, sewing and cutting in the poorly lighted work rooms of the pre-war French dressmakers. Through hard work, she became the head of Chanel's workshop when that designer dominated world fashions with her geometric long waisted clothes.

"At night I worked secretly cutting materials at home," she said today.

"Now I have found the answer. Through double folds and buttons I have made dresses a woman can step into at the wink of an eye."

She orders textile manufacturers to make their material two yards wide, rather than the usual yard wide material most dressmakers use.

Although Mme. Renal has patented her cut, here is a rough idea how it works—a double length of two yard wide material is laid out on the worktable, and a hole cut out for the head. Two rectangular pieces are snipped off near the waist, making a thin strip which forms the back half of the skirt. The other pieces at the top are tied around in front and back, forming a double layered skirt, a bloused effect in back and a gilet effect in front.

Tucks—not seams—are the secret of the comfortable fit.

"I still have to sell the idea to manufacturers in the United States," she said. "But think of the work the process would save since my dresses eliminate most cutting and sewing."

One piece dresses are not new. The Sari, for example, has been worn in India for years. But Mme. Renal has managed to make her dresses straight-skirted with no folds, tucked-in ends, or other devices.

She showed a black angora wool dress with sleeves which could be worn either tight by winding the ends around and fastening with button, or loose and hanging open.

"I would work on a one piece suit for men," she said. "But Winston Churchill beat me to it."

Patou Shows '20 Influence

Paris, Aug. 4 (AP).—Jean Patou, one of the oldest names in French dress designing, displayed some hangovers from the 1920's when he showed his line of fall fashions today.

Other designers have discarded this trend which began last spring. Patou's middy jackets button below the waist and his mannish-looking topcoats have wide shoulders and half-belts placed now at the back. The middy jackets—in rough tweeds, nailhead, pinhead and check suitings—have beaver or black roll collars finishing at the waist. Slender skirts slit at the sides for movement match them.

Topcoats have gigantic lapels that spread over the shoulders. Those on a coat of black and white dogtooth check continued beyond the waist in ends that tied in bow fastening. The coat is lined in orange wool chiffon to match the slender dress, which has one of those draped kerchief collars of which Patou seems so fond this season.

Like other designers, he uses quantities of fur trimming. He lines his coats with sheared white rabbit, cuffs them with snowballs of white fox and sets dog collars of mink or leopard on simple dark dresses. He shows a champagne satin dress with drainpipe skirt banded with mink around the hem. The bodice has long tight sleeves and narrow lapels of mink dipping to the waist.

Through the show he features tam-o-shanter berets in fur, tweed and satin worn rakishly on the back of the head.

Korean war has had little or no effect on the arrival here of American buyers, and there were as many here for the fall fashion openings as last season.

Originally, the "chambre syndicale"—the association of fashion designers.— feared many American buyers would stay home and provide a serious business set-back to houses whose livelihoods depends on trade with the United States.

A survey, however, showed that the 214 buyers—roughly the same number as last year—were lapping up Paris clothes with more gusto than ever.

"All the buyers are here," Suzanne Lulling, director of Christian Dior's house said. "And right now I can tell you the collection is a success."

Dior showed his "oblique" line featuring suits with buttons up the side, rather than the front, and skirts with deep flares at the knee—as well as lavish cocktail outfits and evening gowns embroidered with thousands of beads, sequins and braid.

Pierre Balmain, who presented a beautiful collection based often on "middle eastern" themes with high necked collars, narrow shoulders and width at the bottom of the skirt, was delighted with the reception by American buyers.

Many United States stores and manufacturers send buyers over in the spring, rather than the fall because rates are cheaper and trends already indicated.

However, the fashion association maintained as many buyers as last fall were enjoying even better facilities this year.

For example, a buyer must pay a "basic" sum to any house to see the collection, a guarantee to the designer that he will not merely be "inspired" by the ideas, but will really buy a model.

This year, many of the prices are lower than last. Jacques Fath charges a buyer 100,000 francs (about $300), but this year other houses, such as Carven, ask only half that.

Professional Women End Convention

London, Aug. 4 (AP).—The International Federation of Business and Professional Women wound up its fifth congress today with a resolution reaffirming its belief in "the fundamental human rights of all people everywhere."

Delegates from 20 nations, including the United States, also came out strongly in favor of equal pay for women who do the same jobs as men.

In its "human rights" resolution, the congress said:

"We believe that everyone should have the right to an effective remedy by the competent national tribunals for acts violating the fundamental rights granted him by the constitution or by law.

"No one should be subjected to arbitrary arrest, detension or exile. Everyone is entitled in full equality to a fair and public hearing by an independent and impartial tribunal, in the determination of any criminal charge against him. Everyone charged with a penal offence should be presumed innocent until proved guilty according to law in a public trial."

The congress instructed its board of directors to investigate through the United Nations, or by other means, any reported infringement of the U. N. declaration of human rights.

It urged the setting up at once of some sort of international machinery to deal with "equal pay for women." It asked national federations to work for its ratification and implementation by individual governments.

Miss Sally Butler, the retiring president, presented a library of 200 books as a gift from the Michigan federation to University College, London.

New York Cotton

New York, Aug. 4 (AP).—The cotton futures market today was again subjected to heavy hedge selling, and as a result nearby deliveries closed weak for the fifth consecutive session.

At the close prices were down $1.05 a bale to 35 cents a bale higher. Short covering was a sustaining influence on distant deliveries.

At the start of trading there was a burst of textile mill buying and short covering. This carried prices up to net gains of about 50 cents a bale. When this buying petered out, there was a reappearance of hedge selling, and the market again started to weaken.

Dutch Elm Disease Here Is Increasing

Dutch elm disease is on a "significant" increase in Washington, National Capital Parks reported yesterday.

Plant Pathologist Horace V. Wester said 38 cases of the disease have been discovered here so far this year. By the end of the year, the number is expected to be double the 55 cases registered last year.

The first case in Washington was discovered in West Potomac Park in 1947. It was the only case that year. The next year, however, 18 infected trees were found here.

Wester said park "scouts" have been keeping a close watch on the city parks and areas in nearby Maryland and Virginia for symptoms of the disease. The most obvious symptoms are withering of the leaves, which soon turn yellow and then brown, he said. When such symptoms are spotted, twig cuttings are submitted to the Agriculture Department for cultural diagnosis, Wester added.

At times, the disease can be stopped and the tree saved by pruning, but often it is necessary to remove the tree. Wester said the disease can be controlled to a certain extent by spraying the trees with DDT in the early spring and thus killing the elm bark beetle which transmits the disease.

The number of cases here is relatively small in comparison to the 31,532 elms in Washington, but it has been almost doubling each year, since 1948, Wester pointed out. Also, there probably are many cases which go undetected, he added.

O'Conor Opens Historical Exhibit In Silver Spring

Senator Herbert R. O'Conor (D., Md.), yesterday called on residents of Greater Washington to remember always the early simplicity, earnestness and patriotism of our great heroes as the foundation stones of our present strength.

His remarks over station WGAY opened the first of a series of exhibits of historical items called "Here is Our Heritage" in the window of the Guardian Building and Loan Association, 8400 Georgia ave., Silver Spring.

The first items on display, all from the collection of Leo M. Bernstein, member of the board of directors of the savings association, are a George Washington check, a lock of Washington's hair and a document showing the costs of Army rations in the War of 1812. The second display will be presented August 14 and the third August 24.

Harvard Student Asks $25,000 for Loss of Diploma

Andrew P. Vance, 4915 30th pl. nw., sued yesterday for $25,000 damages for the loss of his Harvard University diploma.

Vance, who received an A.B. degree from the institution in 1948 and now is attending law school there, said that he turned the sheepskin over to The Hecht Co. for framing but that they lost it. He said it is against the rules of Harvard to issue a second original diploma.

How does he get a $25,000 figure as the value of the parchment?

He declared the loss is certain to cause him embarrassment, he will have to make a lot of explanations, it is a unique legal document, he has been "seriously, painfully and grievously damaged," and that the court should consider the time and effort spent in getting the diploma.

$100,000 in Gems Stolen at Danforth Summer Residence

Oyster Harbor, Mass., Aug. 4 (U.P.) A gang of jewel thieves which specializes in hotel robberies was believed responsible today for the theft of $100,000 in jewelry from the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Danforth of Wellesley, Mass.

Danforth and police agreed it was possible that a sneak thief might have entered his home, but regarded it more likely the robbers were members of a gang which stole $25,000 in gems from Cape Cod hotels last month.

Mrs. Danforth, whose husband made five million dollars in the New York stock market in 1929, discovered her loss yesterday when she went to look for the jewels she last wore on July 4.

In her report, Mrs. Danforth said the missing jewelry included an Oriental necklace of 97 matched pearls with a diamond clasp. It was valued at $25,000.

There also were a $10,000 emerald ring, a $10,000 diamond bracelet; a $10,000 white diamond ring; a $75,000 star sapphire bracelet and two large sapphire rings valued at $7500 and $6000, respectively.

Few summer residents lock their doors, it was said.

Firemen Extinguish Press Blaze at Star

The presses were kept rolling at the Evening Star yesterday afternoon despite a fire in the motor of one of them.

Firemen were called to the Star at 1:50 p. m. and ordered the press stopped while they put out the blaze. The plates were moved to another press and the edition kept rolling.

Charles Ruth, assistant superintendent of the Star, said the motor was not damaged by the fire and that there was "only a slight delay" in printing of the newspaper.

WILLIAMSBURG'S
ARTFUL CHARM
Drops a curtsey to today's genius. The acquired skill of generations has here contrived a happy blend of things old and things new. The gracious living room slyly steals a breeze from the Potomac, sits on the terrace and sips a long cool drink or dine in the bay window and watch the boats ply the river; two charming bedrooms, each boasting outsize double closets, 2 baths, a shipshape kitchen and a breakfast room complete this level. Below is perfection in a master bedroom with bath, private entrance and a fireplace all its own. Need we mention the garage, laundry area, maid's facilities, and furnace room? And now the price—It's not as much as you think.

Two County Candidates Withdraw

In Prince Georges County, Robert W. McCullough, Beaver Heights attorney, yesterday withdrew his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for State's attorney.

In doing so, McCullough pointed out that he had stated at the time of his filing that he would not be a candidate if State's Attorney A. Gwynn Bowie ran for reelection. Bowie filed for the office late last week.

In Montgomery County, election officials disclosed that Gerald D. Morgan, Bethesda attorney, has stepped out of the Democratic primary for a county council seat.

Morgan's filing for the primary led to court actions which resulted in voiding of the county's no-party label election law.

Successive rulings of the Montgomery County Circuit Court and the Maryland Court of Appeals upheld the State-wide Lindsay law, which requires partisan elections of county councils.

The Board of Flection Supervisors refused to accept Morgan's candidacy in the Democratic primary until after the Appellate Court's ruling was handed down.

ABC Board Plans To Nip Sales of Illegal Bay Rum

Richmond, Va., Aug. 4 (AP).—That old demon, rum—bay rum, this time—has popped out illegally in many Virginia drugstores and other retail establishments.

A recent outbreak of bay rum drinking in southwest Virginia and plans to stop it were disclosed today by the State Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

To make sure it is not drinkable, State law requires that generally every ounce of bay rum retailed must contain a small amount of tartar emetic to make the drinker quickly and vigorously nauseated.

A check by ABC investigators disclosed that some bay rum is being sold without the ingredient.

So the board today invited representative druggists and retailers to a conference here next Tuesday afternoon to explain the law and get the illegal bay rum off the market.

How To Get a Husband

Preen Like Peacock to Show Best Points

By Cora Carlyle

THE story of Cinderella was not woven out of thin air—it was evolved from the always accepted psychological phenomenon that it was possible for the maid who sat among the cinders, if properly dramatized and reinforced, to walk off with the prize catch of all, Prince Charming. Cinderella who won the Prince was the same girl who scrubbed the floors and did the chores but with the glamorous clothes given her by the Fairy Godmother, she felt like a Princess—and so became one.

It was the same girl with the same face and body but in her drab clothes, Prince Charming was never in the realm of reality. The true magic lay not merely in the outward changes of her appearance but more particularly in the confidence the clothes gave her. Cinderella's possibilities exist in all of us. But in this day and age, we have to be our own Fairy Godmother . . . and dress is the magical wand to help transform our personality.

Everyone understands the importance of clothes as a framework for looks and personality but that they can be more stimulating than the proverbial cocktail has never been sufficiently emphasized. The new feathers on your hat are not only becoming but they can produce the happy feeling inside of you that brings the sparkle to your eyes and the joyous spring to your step. The sweep of a dinner dress can straighten the backbone and make you walk like a queen. We must realize that clothes are an effective pick-me-up; that clothes are a potent force which can be put to work for us in captivating our Prince Charming.

We cannot repeat too often that every girl carries within her potentialities for development, that can make her an attractive and distinctive personality. The story of the ugly duckling who became a beautiful swan . . . the butterfly who emerges from the dull lack-lustre cocoon . . . the Cinderellas and beggar maids who become Princesses . . . all are testimonials to the validity of our statement. Very often we have observed that a girl can be held back merely by a lack of simple confidence which makes her hide her light under a bushel—almost deliberately it seems. An example of this is the girl who fails to play up the excellent lines of her figure; who goes out of her way to de-emphasize her natural good points. Sometimes it's merely a lack of appreciation of showmanship and dramatization . . . a lack that can be rectified by the knowledge that shedding the old skin means donning a more glamourous one.

Nearly always the metamorphasis can be achieved by the right kind of dress. If you've ever looked at clothes as more than just a cover-up for the body, you must have noticed the effect certain outfits have on you. For instance, an exciting dinner dress with flowing lines can make you walk like a Powers model. It encourages you to become haughty, enchanting and inaccessible. Contrast this with what happens when you have an ungodly run in your stocking or mud splashed on the back. You probably feel like slinking along like an alley cat; worthy of no more than the back fence.

Remember the actress lurking in each one of us rises to the mood our clothes create. Take a play-suit! Doesn't it bring out the light-hearted or comradely in you? We've seen even reticent girls act as carefree as a Marine-on-leave in such an informal get-up. In contrast to this, the part of the busy executive calls for the smart tailleur and Sunday tea in the park with Mr. Right can best be dramatized with a large black hat and a feminine afternoon dress with the always effective touch of white at the throat.

Provides Extra Courage

JUST as whistling in the dark helps to bolster one's spirits, dressing well and feeling well-groomed gives one that extra courage to overcome a native timidity and insecurity. The right dress for the right occasion can give the impetus for being what you long to be but never had the courage to act out. Naturally, you must never try to be what is beyond your physical and psychological possibilities. It's always foolish to overreach yourself by trying to imitate an unattainable ideal or to chang. completely.

The trick lies in trying to figure out what you actually are and what you can actually become. Otherwise it defeats the very effect for which you are striving. No one finds artificiality of a forced kind attractive. Men, even more than women, are repelled by obvious affectations. The beau ideal is to establish harmony between the way you look and the way you act. There is nothing more ridiculous, for instance, than trying to be a woman of mystery when you plainly are not. Don't present yourself as too worldly-wise at 20 or too coquettish at 50. Through clothes you should be able to create and dramatize the suitable role for yourself; being yourself is the most suitable. Once you have the maximum feeling of security . . . achieved largely through clothes that make you sure of yourself, you can forget all about them once on a date.

One of the most practical ways to achieve this transformation is to bring into prominence the hidden beauties you've allowed to lie fallow. In the self-appraising mirror, be as objective and critical as your dearest friend would be. Neither virtue nor defect must escape your eagle eye. With the shrewdness of a seasoned auctioneer, you must evaluate the material with which you must work! Only then can you pick out your best features for highlighting and dramatization. You mustn't lose sight of the fact that the lovely woman never attains that loveliness by the hit or miss method. There are definite principles of complimentary lines and proportions that can be applied to facial beauty exactly as they are to home decorating.

Go through every part of your face and decide what's to be done. If the cutest feature of your face is a retrousse nose, wear extreme off-the-face hats. Your nose can bear the closest scrutiny and will probably evoke the general comment, "with that nose, she can wear the craziest hats." Perhaps it's a long nose that's been the bane of your existence. By means of hairdos and hats, it's possible to frame the offending part in such a way that it can be praised as a patrician nose. The line of a hat can do much to modify the prominence of a nose. You must plan such purchases with this in mind—and not leave it to luck.

Is it your eyes that should get the biggest play? Don't be timid in the use of make-up to glamorize this asset! A beautiful pair of eyes is irresistible and careful make-up will focus the attention of both Messrs. Brash and Shy-Smith on them. Also, use the color of your clothes to bring out the shade and depth of your eyes. If your eyes are rather small, don't let your eyebrows grow wild and bushy. Avoid heavy bangs and dark make-up and too much rouge as they all tend to overshadow small eyes. Don't be afraid to experiment with artificial eyelashes or any other device to enhance your eyes. They are an important part of a face as Nature intended you use them for other purposes than seeing. The eyes are the mirror of the soul and age-old means of seducing a man. A provocative look from beautiful eyes strike a telling blow in the arena of love.

Beware of Lipstick

SIMILARLY, Nature gave us a mouth for the intake of food but its serviceability doesn't end there. Its use for kissing is one, we feel sure, can be left to your instincts. But—too much lipstick, a careless outline of the mouth, a red tinge to the teeth are all physically repellent to a man. But the right shade of lipstick carefully applied can make your lips doubly kissable. Let your mouth be the Cupid's bow to pierce the armor of the most resistive swain. Beauty and the rewards that come with beauty can be achieved by the woman who cares.

Perhaps you have the possibilities to be a glamour girl, then do not hesitate to wear extreme and dramatic clothes. The girl who has a way with her hips, should buy the kind of slinky dress with accents on that detail. If you are the proud possessor of a beautiful pair of feet, strain the budget to enhance their beauty and economize on a less attractive part of your anatomy. Learn from the peacock. When he spreads his colorful train, he does it to display his best point. You, too, can cut a lovelier figure by shedding all false modesty and coming out in your true colors.

Every perfume manufacturer understands the psychological allure of one kind of odor as opposed to another. He knows the freshness of the sweet pea scent serves one purpose and the seductiveness of the gardenia smell quite another. From this understanding, you must give consideration to your type of dress as a means to attract the man you've singled out for your own. What seduces the man-about-town is probably too sophisticated for Chick, the athlete.

"The last word" in fashion for the wolf might make mama's boy cringe and wish he'd listened to mama and never taken you out. Mr. pleased-to-meet-you will not cozen to extreme clothes. He only wants to be seen with the classic girl who wears classic clothes. Their worth has stood the test of time and their conservatism jibes with all he values. Their effect on you should make it impossible for you to be frivolous and undignified.

In your spectator sports outfit, you will be dressed for the role of Mr. Rotarian's wife. His opposite, Mr. man-about-town likes dash and the spectacular; he'll get a kick out of the stir your clothes may cause. We've heard that type of suave fellow rhapsodize at length over a bit of fluff that passed as a hat.

If Mr. He is the outdoor type, tweeds are it and you can subtly flatter him by duplicating a female version of his own favorite suit.

A suit goes beyond being just a skirt and jacket. It can be converted into what serves you best and the range goes from the most feminine dressmaker suit to the most tailored sports outfit. You have to decide which gives you the most lift within the framework of your physical limitations. There are no set rules other than selecting clothes that enhance your good old sex appeal and equip you for the role you choose to play. The all-over impression is the important one. You must not think in terms of a dress, a color or accessories but in terms of the whole picture. All men like to see their girls wearing clothes that are up to the minute. The reward comes when the man at your side becomes aware of the response you evoke among his friends, when that certain look in his eyes tells you you're in!

Tin Pan Alley Loves A Good, Gloomy Day

By John Crosby

WHEN the archeologists start digging in the atomic rubble some 2000 years from now, they are likely to seize upon—if they can find a copy—"Show Me a Way to Get Out of This World" as a striking example of the prescience of popular songwriters. I suppose it's useless for me or anyone else to try to tell these people that the song is more a salute to a slang expression, "out of this world," than an invitation to disaster.

CROSBY

"Show Me the Way, etc." carries on the good work of that other popular dirge—"Enjoy Yourself, It's Later Than . . ." It's been a wonderfully gloomy summer in Tin Pan Alley, full full of the portents of catastrophe, and if any of you songsmiths are still engaged in writing songs like "Oh, What a Beautiful Morning!" you had better get hep to the situation right now.

"Oh, what a miserable morning,
Oh, what a lousy day!
I'll be dead before evening.
A bullet is coming my way."

NOW WE'RE getting somewhere, Mannie. I'm greatly surprised there isn't a popular ballad doing the rounds called "Hopeless," written somewhat along the lines of "Careless." Only, of course, without all that moonshine about love. The time has passed when a songwriter can get decently exercised about how many other lips he is kissing, how many lies he is telling, how many arms are enfolding her and the rest of it.

The fact is, Mannie, a girl has got a right to enjoy herself. It's later than she thinks. She'll be out of this world soon enough and she'll have to answer for her indiscretions to higher authority than Irving Berlin. Which gives me a great idea for a song: "Will You Love Me In Hell as You Do in Connecticut?" ("We got a date at the Stygian gate. Now don't be late. We gotta be there when the bell starts knelling.").

I'm just spitballing there, Mannie, but you get the idea. Now, if we can just get the Andrews Sisters . . . that's as far as I've gone. Right now I'm tied up with a song called, "Je Ne Sais Pas. Pas Demandez" ("I Don't Know. Don't Ask Me"), which is to be the theme song of the French version of Sam Spade. But, back in the back of my head—great idea for a song there somewhere, Mannie—I got an idea that this vogue for self-immolation—what am I saying!—is gonna pass.

ALL OF THIS is a rather lengthy and irrelevant introduction to the fact that there are an awful lot of songfests on the air this summer. Sponsors, who could be counted on once for summer replacements, deserted radio in droves, which meant the time had to be filled as cheaply as possible. And nothing is much cheaper than a dance band. This restores radio to the position it held some 25 years ago as a sort of nonstop juke box.

It poses rather a problem for a radio columnist. I've never figured out anything pertinent to say about Guy Lombardo. Guy Lombardo is just one of those guys who doesn't excite pertinence. Or, for that matter, impertinence. You ought to be able to find almost any type of popular music you like.

The popular music situation got so confused this summer that I was approached to be commentator for "Chamber Music Society of Lower Basin Street." I explained that I was strictly ickey. The man on the other end hung up, thus saving popular music for perdition. Say, there's a great idea for a popular song, Mannie.

"Perdition! I Love You. Perdition! I'm Yours!"

How Mobley's Cat Got Railroaded

For a while, it was touch and go. But Radford E. Mobley, jr., is now safely back in Washington and all nine of his pet cat's lives are still intact.

Preparing for a trip to Bar Harbor, the president of the National Press Club wondered what he'd do about the family feline. He couldn't leave her at home by herself, and neither could he bring himself to patronize our Give-Aways.

From New York to Bar Harbor he had a compartment reserved. But the trip from Washington to New York presented something of a problem. The railroads have such stuffy rules about hauling cats in first-class pews.

The ever-resourceful Mobley decided on a direct approach. Wrapping his pet in a linen napkin, he pinned her up with a tie clasp and marched aboard the train as bold as you please.

In the seat ahead of the Mobleys was a woman with a wicker basket. "It's my cat," she explained. "I have to keep her locked up while we're on the train."

"You'll smother the poor thing in there, madam," said Mobley. "You ought to let her stretch her legs."

"An excellent idea," said the woman, and she and the wicker basket took off for the ladies' lounge.

Some minutes later, things began to happen at the forward end of the car. The conducter could be seen trotting about, stooped over like Groucho Marx, with a distraught female a discreet distance behind, sighing: "Oh, dear, she would have to get loose just at the wrong time."

The conductor was still fuming when he came around to collect his tickets. "The nerve of some people," he grumbled, "letting a cat run around loose on a train. The nerve of them."

"A cat?" echoed Rad, casually laying a newspaper across the linen napkin on the seat beside him. "Good heavens. I guess you've got to be on your toes every second you're on duty."

"You said it," growled the conductor, punching his ticket and moving along, "but they don't get away with much on my train. No sir."

GIVE-AWAYS

"Two very pretty 7-week-old kittens." (Randolph 1282.)

"Two mother cats and four beautiful 6-week-old kittens." (Overlook 1395.)

"Three housebroken 6-week-old kittens." (Union 0793.)

"Will deliver black-and-white mother cat and her daughter; good mousers." (Sligo 3292 after 6 p. m.)

"Kittens." (Elmwood 672.)

"Housebroken, intelligent terrier, 6 months old." (Hyattsville 0613.)

"Three nice kittens, 8 weeks old." (Lincoln 7-4054.)

"Two male puppies, 6 months old." (Randolph 0452 between 7 and 8 p. m.)

"Three-month-old black kitten." (Taylor 3489 after 6 p. m.)

"Yellow male kitten, 8 weeks old; also 2-year-old female cat, good mouser." (Sligo 0120.)

"Six healthy puppies, mixture police and chow." (Johnson 2-7290.)

INCIDENTAL INTELLIGENCE

The 1950 census shows Baltimore City retaining its lead over Washington. The Monumental City had a population of 859,000 in 1940, and grew to 941,000 this year. Washington, which had only 663,000 in the 1940 count, hit 792,000 in the current census—thereby closing the gap to some extent.

But an even better picture of comparative growth may be had from the figures for the two "metropolitan areas." Some 384,000 persons live in the Baltimore area but outside the city limits, whereas the Washington area contains a whopping 660,000 who are not included in the D. C. figures.

The result is that Metropolitan Washington has a population of 1,450,000—which is more than 100,000 larger than Metropolitan Baltimore.

Just in case you're interested—The District's population in 1900 was 278,000. For better or for worse, we're growing up.

THIS IS WASHINGTON

J. R. W. tells me he was in a taxi that was nearing the K st. entrance to the Statler through the service lane which runs between the sidewalk and the pedestrian island.

As the cab waited its turn to approach the doorman, the youthful driver spotted a friend standing on the island. The usual greetings were exchanged, then:

"Hey, I thought you were going to law school. I didn't know you were a hacker."

"I'm no hacker," grinned the driver, "I'm a public utilities executive."

Bravery Medal Bill Signed

By the United Press

President Truman signed a bill yesterday authorizing the Attorney General to award medals for bravery to youths who risk their lives to save others. It now becomes law. The bill also authorizes medal awards to youths who have achieved outstanding recognition for character and service. Awards would be limited to children under 18.

U. S. Unity Declared Vital

By Drew Pearson

The more enlightened half of the Pearson household took a dim view of a recent column in which I thought I was urging support for President Truman in the Korean war but compared his qualities of leadership somewhat unfavorably with those of FDR.

Pearson

"It doesn't make any difference," said Mrs. P. "what Mr. Truman's voice is like or whether he is good on the radio. You shouldn't be too personal. And you shouldn't be too tough on him in comparing him to FDR."

Maybe Mrs. P. has a point there. At any rate the main thing I want to emphasize in urging more national unity is that people usually fail to understand that world wars really begin far in advance of the actual conflagration, and a President who has the courage to nip a war in the bud early sometimes is able to head off a major world war later.

I also think that President Truman acted with a lot of courage in not ducking a showdown on Korea—despite the critics who now say "I told you so" when things go wrong.

Whether he was wise or whether General MacArthur was too confident in his advance "guarantee of success" I don't know. But I do know that we're all in the thing now, and it's important for us all to stick together. It's also important for us to understand more about the difficult question of how wars start. And if Harry doesn't have the same radio techniques as FDR in selling ideas to the American people, then perhaps some of the rest of us can help him.

How Dictators Build

At any rate I recall most vividly a previous important chapter in our long efforts to prevent war when the late President Roosevelt did his best to nip war in the bud but failed. It illustrates how dictators carefully build up their strength against the democracies before the peace-loving people of the latter countries know what they are in for.

In the late summer of 1937, it was obvious to President Roosevelt, Admiral William Leahy, and many other observers—including this columnist, who repeatedly warned of it—that a world war was inevitable—if the dictators continued their march of unchecked aggression.

Japan was rapidly swallowing China. Mussolini had gulped down Ethiopia and was licking his chops for more. Hitler had annexed Austria, bitten off the Ruhr, and was growling at Czechoslovakia.

Therefore, Admiral Leahy, Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles and FDR devised the strategy of putting the weakest dictator in his place in order to make an example to the others.

To this end they picked Japan, partly because we had firm treaty obligations—which Japan had signed—guaranteeing the sovereignty of China. Other European nations—Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Italy—had signed this nine-power treaty which the Jap war lords had torn to shreds by invading China.

FDR's 'Quarantine'

The first step was Roosevelt's famous Chicago speech in the fall of 1937 proposing a "quarantine" against aggressor nations. Simultaneously, Admiral Leahy worked out a long-range naval blockade of Japan, under which, merely by stationing American ships at Panama and our West Coast, with British ships at Singapore, we could cut off all Japanese oil, cotton, copper, scrap iron without firing a shot. Japan being an island country, wholly dependent on basic imports, such a blockade was fairly easy.

Finally, in order to mobilize world public opinion and peace machinery against the Japanese war lords, Roosevelt called the Brussels conference of nine-power treaty nations which had guaranteed the sovereignty of China and asked them to carry out their pledge.

Who Killed Peace?

I have never been able to find out exactly what killed this laudable and highly important attempt to prevent the world war that most people knew was coming. The late Norman Davis, chief American delegate to the Brussels Conference, told me that his attempts to take a firm stand against Japanese aggression were constantly sabotaged in the State Department.

In addition, Jim Farley was reported concerned about Midwest political reaction to Roosevelt's bold "quarantine" speech. But I think the basic trouble was that FDR himself either neglected the all-important step he had taken, or else didn't have the courage to face the risk of possible war.

USS Panay Sunk

Two months later, when the Jap war lords deliberately and brazenly tested out American courage by sinking the gunboat USS Panay on the Yangtze River, Admiral Leahy once again urged that his blockade machinery be put into effect. But once again Hugh Wilson urged caution. In the end, both Hull and Roosevelt shunned the risk of a showdown.

At that time—December, 1937 the dictators were far from ready for a war. They lacked the raw materials, the arms, even the manpower. They were biting off chunks of the world, piecemeal, in order to build up their strength.

But despite this, the United States side-stepped. Roosevelt, strong as he was politically, wise as he was on foreign policy, shrank from that tough, difficult decision of a long-range naval blockade, which, though the chances of success were excellent, nevertheless did carry the risk of war.

President Truman, faced with somewhat the same problem in Korea, did not flinch. He knew what the risks were. But he also knew that a stand against continued Russian aggression had to be taken some time.
